Four Millions Idle.
Bibles and Prize Fights.
We Rebuke Liberia.
Not to the Poor House.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BETWEEN FOUR and five millions of men are idle in the United States, according to Chairman Woods, of President Hoover's committee on unemployment. Fortunately, it seems safe to say that the peak of idleness has about been reached, with better conditions coming.

BIG CITIES might improve their methods of relieving those actually hungry. John Brisben Walker writes that he saw in New York City "several thousand men, shivering on the sidewalks on Seventh avenue between Thirty-second street and the Franciscan Church on Thirty-first street, feeble, old men, sickly youths, strong looking workers." They were waiting to receive the large sum of 10 cents, and, at the same time, according to Mr. Walker, the city's armories, large buildings, nearby, stood empty and heated.

OUR CIVILIZATION does fairly well in producing wealth. But, it doesn't seem to know quite what to do when the machine breaks down temporarily.

As for the statement of one gentleman that the Red Cross can attend to present difficulties, that is dangerous doctrine. The Red Cross couldn't attend to even one difficulty, if real trouble should start.

AN UNPLEASANT incident occurred in Arkansas, when farmers came to the town of England, and entered stores demanding food for their children. They got it.

In Newark, N. J., yesterday a hundred unemployed men led by so-called "reds" marched on the city hall. Policemen's nightsticks disposed of them, with the aid of mounted police.

Something more systematic is needed.

OUR NATIONAL "depression" works impartially. Bible Society receipts are down for 1930, fewer Bibles sold. And prize fight promoters in New York took in during 1930, $3,262,000 less than they took in the year before.

That will make it necessary for some politicians to look elsewhere for funds needed. But, what a profitable source of supply the prize fight graft must be.

SECRETARY STIMSON warns the Negro republic of Liberia that slavery must be abandoned. Investigation proves that high officials of the Negro republic, including the vice president, are engaged in the slave trade, and persist in it.

This seems surprising, considering that Liberia was planned as a haven from slavery.

BUT, MANY of our best people, north and south, approved of slavery a little while ago, and we can hardly blame the Liberians for lagging a little behind, especially as slavery is about their only source of profit.

A slave owner gave his slave enough food and clothes to keep him living, and had to worry about him when sick.

Modern industrialists gave the worker enough to keep him going, and need not worry about him when he's sick. In the eyes of Providence, there may not be a great difference between bodily slavery and what our Socialist friends call "wage slavery."

PRESIDENT HOOVER, in an encouraging address to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, points out that the millions of Americans using automobiles are "not riding to the poor house."

The President sees in the Department of Commerce report, 3,500,000 new automobiles, made and sold last year, besides accumulated stocks disposed of, and an increase of 5 per cent in the use of gasoline, as compared with "the highly optimistic year of 1929."

THE PRESIDENT'S reminder that one American in every 10 is, directly, or indirectly, dependent on the automobile industry, is important. The President says "hundreds of miles of new roads are being constructed every day in the world," offering new space to new cars, and encouraging the industry.

Get a 1931 model if you can. Every American needs two homes now, one in which he sleeps, one in which he rides.

THE UNITED STATES recognizes the new government of Guatemala on the ground that the provisional president, Andrade, did not enter office by a coup d'etat. What difference how the President came in, since he is in?

Our first president came in by a considerable coup d'etat, that included kicking King George out of the country. Napoleon Third of France came in by a disreputable coup d'etat, but we recognized him. Why not say to each country:

"Fix your own government, and we'll recognize it, as long as it doesn't bother us."

TEN HUGE Italian seaplanes, with engines roaring, crews and welcoming population rejoicing, landed on the water of the Brazilian harbor of Natal, at 4:14 last Tuesday afternoon. Led by the Italian flier, Gen. Balbo, they had "hopped" across the South Atlantic Ocean, from Bolama, Africa, 1,875 miles, in 18 hours and 46 minutes.

THAT IS real ocean travel. It was not the hop of one individual flier for the Italian seaplanes flew the ocean IN MILITARY FORMATION. It is a marvelous accomplishment, a great honor to Italy and to Mussolini. How much surprised

WICKERSHAM FINDINGS TO BE '32 KEY

White House Approval Ready For Report Indorsing Law Despite Split Commission

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A divided report, with the majority in agreement only upon the less controversial aspects of prohibition — this is the package which the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission will deposit on President Hoover's doorstep in the near future, according to all indications today.

Described as preponderantly dry, the report will be submitted quickly to Congress with the approval of President Hoover, who will thus clarify his position on prohibition for the opening of the 1932 campaign, according to reports in well-informed circles.

It is understood the commission will not propose any drastic modification of existing law, either affecting the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead act, but, on the contrary, will recommend further trial of both under such corrective suggestions as the commissioners have been able to agree upon.

What comfort the anti-drys can extract from it will have to be found in the recommendations for the correction of abuses under the existing system.

FIGHT FEAR FADES

Heretofore, it has been understood that President Hoover would not immediately transmit the report to Congress for fear of kicking up such a ruckus as to imperil the appropriation bills and perhaps force an extra session of the new Seventy-second Congress.

There has been a change in White House policy in this re-

POPE STERN ON CONJUGAL SANCTITY

Birth Control, Companionate Marriages and Divorce Condemned in Encyclical

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

ROME, Jan. 8.—Unconditional indictment of all methods of birth control and a stern warning to the Christian world to abandon "modern" conceptions of marriage and divorce were contained in a vigorously worded encyclical addressed to the bishops of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy by Pope Pius XI today.

Without mincing words, His Holiness launched out against "companionate marriage," divorces, and particularly against the use of contraceptives by married persons. The Pope said:

"The destruction of an unborn child for any reason is murder. It is the duty of parents not only to be solely concerned with the begetting of children, but also with their proper education."

ATTACKS BIRTH CONTROL

Pope Pius harked back to the stern teachings of St. Augustine in launching his attack upon birth control, which obviously was intended as an answer to the resolutions passed at the recent Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops in London, when birth control was conceded admissable under certain circumstances. He said:

"Saint Augustine referring to those who from the beginning of married life took measures against having children, called the woman in such cases 'the mere mistress of her husband' and the man 'the paramour of his wife.'"

The encyclical dwelt at length upon conjugal fidelity and the sacred nature of the marriage vows, insisting that childless unions were in direct contradic-

PEACE DEAL HERE FOR PRIMARY LIKELY

Malone Officially Appointed To Pinchot's Cabinet; Gets Kline's 'Blessing'

Although the 1931 primary election is eight months away the political straws are pointing to a harmony deal.

For instance, before Gov.-elect Pinchot talked with James F. Malone concerning the Properties and Supplies Department appointment he had a long conference with Mayor Charles H. Kline. Those little birds that whisper in the ears of politicians say that Kline approved and even suggested to Pinchot that he appoint Malone.

MALONE APPOINTED

Official announcement of Malone's appointment was made at Harrisburg by Pinchot today. It was predicted exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday afternoon. Malone accepted the appointment.

There are those who say it is not impossible that County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Mayor Kline and State Senator James J. Coyne will all be united for the fall campaign in the "happy homogenous family" that Kline said the Allegheny County delegation was just before it indorsed State Senator W. D. Mansfield for president pro tempore of the Senate.

That the Kline-Coyne-Harris-Mansfield combination did not win and that the Armstrong-Mellon victory in the Senate pro tem fight was a "double hit," smart politicians agree. Kline is too shrewd a politician, they say, not to see shoal waters ahead by an open break with Armstrong. On the other hand, Armstrong is going to be a candidate for re-elec-

WIDOW SET FOR HOP TO AZORES

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 8—(INS.)—Undaunted by adverse weather conditions encountered on their 600-mile flight from Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. MacLaren were determined today to venture again over the wintry Atlantic Ocean in their monoplane Tradewind in a dash for the Azores, second leg of a projected payload crossing to Paris.

The aviatrix and her navigator, who flew from Norfolk to Bermuda in six hours and 49 minutes despite contrary winds that at times mounted to a gale, expected to start for the Azores, an unbroken water hop of 2,042 miles, around 5 p. m. today, depending on weather conditions.

Aviation experts have counseled them against attempting to carry out their projected Paris flight on the ground that winter storms over the ocean will bring certain failure and probably death, but both fliers remain confident that they will succeed.

Damrosch Daughter To Wed Playwright

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Miss Leopoldine Blaine Damrosch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, will be married to Sidney Howard, author and playwright, here on Saturday, according to announcement today. Damrosch is the well-known orchestra conductor. Howard, who wrote "They Knew What They Wanted" and won a Pulitzer prize, is the divorced husband of the late Clare Eames.

Bridesmaid to Wed Bride's Ex-Husband

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Miss Anna S. Newbold, one of Philadelphia's wealthiest heiresses, will be married Saturday to Donald Byers Barrows, whose divorce from the former Miss Sydney Biddle was made public Tuesday.

The divorce was granted November 24 in Common Pleas Court and was obtained by Mrs. Barrows, who, with her two children, makes her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mercer Biddle, in Torresdale. Miss Newbold was one of Miss Biddle's bridesmaids.

Lita Chaplin, Carpentier Kidnaped and Robbed

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of Charlie Chaplin, picture star, was held up, kidnaped in her own car and robbed of jewelry valued at $25,000 last night by four men.

The kidnaping took place in sight of nearly 100 men, women and boys who had gathered to see Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier leave the theater, where Mrs. Chaplin has been appearing in vaudeville for the past week.

"I don't know, I tell you! I don't know! There were four of them. They said they'd 'put me on the spot' if I talked. I don't want to sign a complaint. Twenty-five thousand dollars—what's that? My life is worth more to me than that!"

She said she and Carpentier were rehearsing a play or vaudeville skit—it was not made plain just which—in which they both plan to appear.

The Chaplin car was found about 4:30 a. m. by police about three blocks from where the victims were left. There was no damage, and the keys were in the lock.

2 CHILDREN DIE UNDER AUTOS

Two school children were struck and killed by automobiles while going home for lunch today.

William Metz, 8, of 4818 Cypress street, was crossing at Osceola and Cypress streets when he was struck by an auto driven by Arthur D. Harris, of 574 Brushton avenue, Wilkinsburg. Harris posted $1,000 bail with the coroner.

Blanche Volpoto, 7, of the Peterson Plan, Versailles Township, was going to her home from the township school when at Walnut street and Snake Hollow road, she was struck by a truck. Her brother, John, 10, escaped injury. The driver, John Hudson, of 1712 Bailey avenue, McKeesport, who is employed by Harding Creamery Company, was held by McKeesport police for the coroner.

STEEL MERGER FIGHT IN DOUBT

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Reports in Wall street say some Bethlehem Steel Corporation directors are of the opinion that in view of changed conditions in the steel industry it would be inadvisable to press an appeal against the recent injunction barring the proposed merger of Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

One Bethlehem director was reported to believe the injunction supplied Bethlehem with an opportunity to withdraw gracefully, and believed several other directors shared his view. Official comment, however, was lacking.

Neither officials nor counsel for Bethlehem Steel have indicated whether an appeal would be taken. Directors of the corporation are not scheduled to meet until January 29. The 30-day period within which the appeal must be filed will expire January 27.

Peru's Ex-President Must Pay 10 Millions

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The National Sanctions Court today sentenced Augusto B. Leguia, deposed president of Peru, and his three sons, to reimburse the national treasury 25,000,000 soles (approximately $10,000,000 at normal exchange). This action was taken after a three-month investigation of their activities during the 11 years of the Leguia regime.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gen. Renri Berthelot, who commanded the French troops on the Marne-Rheims line during the World War, today upderwent amputation of his right leg above the knee to check the progress of a disease similar to that which brought death to Marshal Joffre.

TRUCK, TROLLEY CRASH, 1 HURT

One man was injured, and a truck and two passenger cars were badly damaged today when a street car, eastbound on Penn avenue near Evaline street, crashed into the rear of a truck owned by the E. A. Ebert Grocery Company, 5122 Penn avenue.

The truck driver, Ray Wotton, 27, of 5016 Penn avenue, is in the West Penn Hospital suffering from fractures of both legs and body injuries. He was pinned in the cab.

The street car, a Mt. Lebanon trolley, was being operated by C. P. Cuff from the Tunnel barns to the Homewood repair shops.

Police said the truck was pulling out as the street car struck it. The truck, knocked 75 feet, crashed into two other parked cars, damaging them. They were owned by John T. Haller, of Bellevue, and Clyde L. Liggett, of Third street, Pitcairn. Liggett's car was knocked to the sidewalk.

The street car was slightly damaged.

P. R. R. Trains Late Here Due to Wreck

Acord's Body Saved From Pauper Grave

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Instead of resting in a pauper's grave in Mexico, the remains of Art Acord, once a leading cowboy screen star, will be brought back to Hollywood for burial. Acord committed suicide in Chihuahua last week.

Friends arranged to send $400 to Juarez, Mex., that the body might be brought to the border after interment in Mexico was halted by a wire from Senator Hiram Johnston to the American consul at Juarez, sent at the request of various film personages here.

Mrs. Armour, Rich Again, in New Home

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, once again a wealthy woman because of more than $8,000,000 received from an oil company investment of her late husband, was in a new home today.

The move into more desirable quarters was made yesterday following her good fortune in an oil company deal in which she turned over 400 shares of stock in the Universal Oil Products Company.

Davis Urges Reed to Rush Selection of Postmaster

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Speed in selecting a postmaster for Pittsburgh was urged on Senator David A. Reed by his colleague, James J. Davis, junior senator from Pennsylvania.

Acting on behalf of several Pittsburgh representatives, Senator Davis asked Reed to make a choice for the postmaster vacant since last July 1, as soon as possible.

The senior senator informed Davis he expected to go to Pittsburgh Saturday and would discuss filling the vacancy at that time with political and business leaders of that city.

Davis, who like Reed, resides in Pittsburgh, said the uncertainty concerning the postmaster has had a demoralizing effect on the Pittsburgh postoffice personnel, since retirement of Postmaster George W. Gosser. The post has been filled by an inspector from the Postoffice Department at Washington.

The assistance of Davis was sought by Representatives Harry C. Estep and M. Clyde Kelly. Estep advised Davis the Pittsburgh Republican organization, headed by Mayor Charles H. Kline, as well as County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican chairman of Allegheny County, and a majority of the five Allegheny County representatives, parts of whose districts are served by the Pittsburgh postoffice, favored appointment of James B. Anderson, the assistant postmaster.

4-SYSTEM RAIL MERGER MAY SOLVE ECONOMY RIDDLE

ANTI-TRUST LAWS HELD DRAWBACK

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The proposed four-system Eastern railroad merger, which President Hoover has sponsored, constitutes a significant symbol of the times. It involves railroads totaling 55,000 miles of tracks and worth between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000.

Its consummation would be one answer to the cry which is on the hearts of thoughtful business executives for legal permission to go the limit in the direction of producing better service to the public at the least possible cost.

Logical steps toward business co-ordination and co-operation have been hindered by partially obsolete anti-trust laws, which breathe the spirit of horse-and-buggy economy rather than the modern atmosphere of 1931.

TRIED TO LIFT BAN

For a decade, Congress has sought in vain to lift the ban on railroad mergers. The transportation act of 1920, reflecting a newer attitude toward efficient big business, was designed to relieve the carriers of the restraints of the anti-trust laws. It sought to encourage the great carriers to get on a more profitable basis through mergers without taxing shippers and passengers. Under existing regulation the attempt is to put railroad rates on a "cost-plus basis" and accordingly any steps which will eliminate duplication and reduce economic waste would tend to cut costs and should ultimately be reflected either in lower freight and passenger rates or improved service—or both.

For years the great chieftains of the railroad industry have tarried when they should have acted promptly. With each trying to gain special advantages for his own company there has been endless delay. The proposed plan which awaits the formal approval of the interstate commerce commission will not end competition in the east, but it will place competition in the hands of four giants, instead of leaving it scattered among unequals.

TIME TO ACT

After a year of devastating declines in railroad earning power it is especially timely to act now in every legitimate direction which will heighten railroad credit; for the railroads still constitute a growing and never finished industry, and to perform proper service they need continuous access to the capital markets of the world.

When the interstate commerce act was passed in 1887 the railroads enjoyed more or less of a transportation monopoly. They no longer do. They are now faced by increasingly active competition from other agencies of transportation, including the motor bus, motor trucks, airplanes, pipelines and canal boats. Unless the credit of the railroads is bolstered up, as intelligent mergers would help to do, the carriers will face a losing battle against the new competition.

My own view is that it would be good public policy not only to

Price of Gasoline Slashed at Toledo

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 8.—All of the larger refining companies with the exception of Sun Oil Company today put into effect a two-cent a gallon reduction in the price of gasoline, carrying the price down to 15 cents for the regular grades and 18 cents for the special gasolines. Sun Oil is expected to make an announcement later in the day.

'JUNGLE' FIGHT SENDS 5 TO JAIL

Serbian Christmas festivities of five members of the "Jungles," a colony of unemployed along Banksville road resulted today in all being sent to the workhouse for 30 days at a hearing before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Court.

The celebration of what they termed Serbian Christmas began yesterday when police say Charles Rusko, 29, dug up a barrel of wine in front of his shack.

When West End police arrived a "free-for-all" fight was in progress, they said, with sticks and shovels the principal weapons.

Kasmit Yedwoch, 40, and Louis Dohan, 38, were treated in South Side Hospital for lacerations.

Those sent to the workhouse were Mike Milish, 55; John Selok, 38; Charles Rusko, 29; Dohan and Yedwoch.

BONDS UNPAID, ASK RECEIVER

Appointment of receivers for the Midland Natural Gas Company of Charleston, W. Va., was asked in Federal District Court today in a petition by the F. L. Andrews Investment Trust of Fall River, Mass., and Harold C. Bowen also of Fall River.

Last July, the complaint asserts, an issue of five-year 6 per cent bonds for $2,500,000 was issued and the company defaulted in redemption of coupons. The receivers asked for were to conserve the assets of the company which controls extensive gas and oil properties in Western Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

Free on Parole, Charged in Theft

Mrs. E. M. Diebold, King Edward Apartments, employed by the Philadelphia Company, testified in Central Police Court today that James Tindel, 22, Negro, of Roberts street, had stolen her purse containing $25 and trinkets from her desk. When Magistrate Rothenberg learned that Tindel was already on parole for petty thievery he turned him over to the parole officer.

SEA HOP COSTS FIVE LIVES

ROME, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Italian government revealed today that five aviators were killed and three seriously injured in the crash of two of the 12 trans-Atlantic seaplanes which started from Bolama in Portuguese Guinea for South America Tuesday under command of Gen. Italo Balbo.

The official report on the tragedy of which there had been rumors since yesterday, was given out 48 hours after the accident in order to soften the blow to the Italian people who gave themselves over to unbounded rejoicing when 10 of the machines spanned the hazardous 1,860 miles to Natal, Brazil, in 17 hours and 15 minutes.

TRANS-U. S. RAIL MERGER URGED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Two forms of railroad consolidation, both providing for transcontinental systems, were contained in bills introduced in the Senate today by Senator Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa.

The first would amend the 1920 railroad merger act by limiting consolidation to a coast-to-coast system, and the other would direct the Interstate Commerce Commission to acquire such a system for the government by purchase or condemnation of franchises or properties of sufficient systems to effect a government-owned transcontinental route.

Basketball Game For Needy Planned

Officials and members of the West Homestead police and fire departments have arranged a benefit basketball game in the Calhoun Junior High School Thursday, January 15, for the district's needy. Proceeds will be expended to buy a carload of coal for unfortunate families in West Homestead, according to Police Chief D. R. Lindbergh, chairman of the general committee. Mowry-Buick and Jenkins A. C. will be the opposing teams.

tion, so both have an interest in harmony, politicians point out.

CROSSED SWORDS

Armstrong and Kline crossed swords at Harrisburg in the Senate pro tem presidency fight. Armstrong won that tilt. He would rather have easy going in his campaign, but has himself indicated that he would rather not have trouble but is not running away from any fight.

Suppose Armstrong and Senator James J. Coyne should be running mates in the fall, what would happen to Minority Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, ask the rail birds who pick the political horses?

The answer of one of those who claims to know is:

"McGovern has said that he will not be a candidate for the minority commissionership. If he cannot be a majority member of the board he will not run. He has said that he will not put up with another five years like the last. But what of it? Pinchot put him in as controller to keep the Pinchot policies alive. Pinchot is in again for four years. McGovern is sitting on top of the political world insofar as he personally is concerned, and could easily obtain a good state appointment."

This does not mean that McGovern will not be a candidate. For if he runs in the Republican primary election against Senator Coyne, the Fourth Ward leader might not find the going easy. If the primary election returns showed Armstrong and McGovern the nominees of the Regular Republican party it would just be another case of strange political bedfellows.

Pinchot Praises Malone Announcing Appointment

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—Governor-elect Pinchot today, announcing the appointment of James F. Malone, former president of Council of Pittsburgh, to be secretary of property and supplies at $10,000 a year in the next cabinet, said:

"I announce with real satisfaction that James F. Malone, of Pittsburgh, has accepted the post of secretary of property and supplies in the new cabinet. Mr. Malone has very unusual qualifications for the work of this department.

"He has had great experience in similar work in the city of Pittsburgh and his high standing as a citizen and as a businessman fits him especially for dealing with the problems ahead which are largely business problems.

Bay State Governor Insists on Repeal

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely, inaugurated today as the first Democratic governor of Massachusetts in 15 years, asked the Legislature for $21,300,000 for unemployment relief and asked that the Legislature demand modification of the Volstead act.

Gov. Ely said the Eighteenth Amendment had not accomplished its purpose, and urged that Massachusetts not stop at the repeal of the state enforcement act.

REPORT IS KEY TO 1932

spect, however, for it is now authoritatively stated that Mr. Hoover plans to keep the report on his desk only long enough to read it and prepare a covering message for its submission to Congress.

Inasmuch as the commission is his own idea and its members were personally selected by him, it is almost inconceivable that the President could recommend the rejection of its report by the Congress. It is almost similarly inconceivable that he could forward a report of such tremendous popular interest without committing himself in some way upon the value of it.

Therefore, the opinion is almost universally held in the capital that when the Wickersham report goes to the Capitol it will be with an executive blessing.

MAY STATE STAND

Some of the President's friends believe he will take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to clarify his position on the broad question of prohibition—perhaps chart the course he expects to take with regard to prohibition in the 1932 campaign, which is now looming ahead.

Mr. Hoover's commitments on prohibition have been comparatively few.

In the pre-convention campaign of 1928 he described prohibition as "a noble experiment that must be worked out constructively." During the campaign he said the whole question ought to be examined by a commission, which he later made effective by the appointment of the Wickersham commission. In his inaugural message he said disrespect for law was the greatest problem before the country and called upon the country to obey the law. In his last message to Congress he ignored the question completely.

Hence the expectation on the part of some of his friends, at least, that when he sends the Wickersham report to Congress he will give the country a greater elaboration of his views on prohibition than he has ever done before, either as a candidate or as President.

First Modification Of Dry Law Effected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The first modification of any prohibition legislation in years was accomplished by Congress today when the House unanimously approved the Stobbs bill, which softens the drastic Jones "five and 10 law," under which it has been possible to inflict a five-year term and a fine of $10,000 for any violation of the Volstead act.

FIRST TO FACE EGAN FREED

The jury was given binding instructions for acquittal by Judge John E. Egan, hearing his first case in Common Pleas court today.

Mrs. Anna Wyland, 4612 Henry street, was the defendant. She was charged with larceny by bailee. According to testimony, her husband bought an automobile, financed by the Manufacturers Finance Acceptance Corporation which sought to replevin the machine when the purchaser fell behind in payments.

Agents for the company, it was testified, caused the arrest of Mrs. Wyland when she told them her husband and the car were in Harrisburg.

Judge Egan ordered the woman's release on the grounds she did not sign the lease.

PRESIDENT TO DEFY SENATE

Hoover Will Reject Request For Return of Power Board Chairman's Nomination

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Hoover will reject the impending request of the Senate for return of the nomination of George Otis Smith, recently confirmed chairman of the new Federal Power Commission, it was learned today on highest authority.

The President has been informed by his legal advisers the Senate has no power to compel the return of Smith's nomination, since the new chairman is commissioned and in office. Mr. Hoover will abide by that advice, possibly backed by a legal opinion from the attorney general, and inform the Senate he does not desire to permit a reconsideration of Smith's confirmation.

FIRST ROUND OVER

The first round in the controversy over Smith, involving a constitutional issue never raised before, will terminate with the new chairman remaining in office. But this first round verdict will not end the controversy. The Senate has the power to remove Smith peremptorily from office on next July 1 by the simple expedient of refusing to appropriate any money for his salary. Under the Constitution, no federal official may serve without pay.

The constitutional question involved has really agitated the Senate. Opponents of Smith declare he has not been constitutionally confirmed until after expiration of the time limit, in which his confirmation can be reconsidered.

WAIVED RIGHT

Smith's friends declare the Senate waived its right to reconsider the nomination by sending official notification of the confirmation to Mr. Hoover. There, the two groups battle, revolving around a simple Senate rule, permitting reconsideration of nominations if a motion is entered within two actual executive sessions after the confirmation.

Such constitutional authorities as Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, and Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, argue the only legal question in issue is the "reasonableness" of the rule. They hold the Constitution gives the Senate the power to promulgate any "reasonable" rule for its conduct of business. They contend the Supreme Court would uphold their right to reconsider Smith's nomination—providing the question could be taken into the courts—if the rule is "reasonable."

SEED LOAN BILL AGAIN BLOCKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—For the third successive day, action on the $45,000,000 feed and seed loan bill for drought-stricken farmers was blocked in the House today by Representative Laguardia, (Rep.), of New York.

He prevented the bill from going to conference because leaders would not agree to appropriate money to buy food for the needy in cities if they approved the Caraway $15,000,000 amendment to provide food for farmers.

Meantime, verbal assaults were continued in the American Red Cross for alleged failure to relieve human suffering in many sections of the South devastated by drought while in the House a bill to authorize the Farm Board to deliver to the Red Cross wheat needed to relieve hunger among the unemployed was introduced by Rep. Fish.

Coolidge Approves Step To End Liberian Slavery

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 8.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

There will be general satisfaction that the note of our government sent to Liberia by Secretary Stimson has made us one of the first nations to use its influence where its influence could properly be effective to abolish the remnants of human slavery in the world.

Calvin Coolidge

Our relations with Liberia have been very intimate ever since that country was designated about one hundred years ago as a settlement for freed slaves from the United States. That gave us an especial interest, rising to a duty, to preserve a state of freedom for its colored people. After learning from an official investigation by a commission having American representation of the extence in that republic of slavery and forced labor, good faith on our part required immediate and firm action.

We have discharged a moral if not a legal obligation. If other nations will take a like responsibility, the five million slaves reported by Lord Cecil of the League of Nations to exist in the world speedily will be set free. From our own history we know this can be done. But these unfortunate people should not be turned adrift. They must be assisted in becoming self-supporting.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Bushman Millions Gone, He Plays Obscure Roles

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The outlying Kedzie theater on the West Side is far out of the route of the night theater crowd, but Francis X. Bushman, matinee idol of 15 years ago, had a star on his dressing room door and he is "doing the work he loves."

The Tribune quoted him today as saying he was "broke, not a penny left" of the $6,000,000 to $9,000,000 he earned since he became the first star of the old Essanay studios on Argyle street here in 1914, in the pre-Hollywood era of motion pictures.

Following the filming of "Ben Hur" in Rome in 1914, he was blacklisted by the major picture firms, he said. Beverly Bayne divorced him in 1925. Lawyer fees and alimony left something of his fortune, he said, but he lost "every cent" in the stock market crash of 1929. Now he is at work again in a stock company. He will be 47 years old Saturday.

At the height of his career in 1916 Bushman bought a lavender monogrammed automobile manned by lackeys in livery to match and smoked nothing but lavender monogrammed cigarets, he said.

"I've seen everything there is to see and done everything at an age when I could enjoy it most. I don't need any money now and I can manage to travel less grandly."

APOLLO FATHER KILLS WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SELF

SON FINDS FAMILY SLAIN

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, Jr., Staff Correspondent.

Yesterday Paul was a lad of 15. Today, somehow, he is older. Yesterday seems ages ago, a dream, a nightmare.

It was only yesterday that he brought a dime's worth of postage stamps home from school for his step-mother. She would put them on some letters asking a little more time for bills, passing the time of day with a distant friend.

SEES BODIES INSIDE

Paul tried the kitchen door. It was locked. Through the window he saw a form, still on the floor. It must be his step-mother, playing. They had lots of fun together. He would go around front and get in.

Through another window he saw two more forms, lying in the dining room. The truth dawned upon him. It was 17-year-old Eleanor, his sister, whom he saw through the kitchen door. It was his step-mother and father he saw in the dining room.

He ran, calling for help. Neighbors, Charles Burkett and J. C. Kepple, answered. The boy sobbed out his story.

They learned that a double murder and a suicide had wiped out three lives.

They rushed Blaine J. Crawford, 46, to the Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington. He died there, a bullet through his left temple. Ada Crawford, Paul's stepmother, was already dead, as was Eleanor. The woman's skull had been crushed by a hammer, she had been shot and her throat had been cut; two bullets and numerous razor slashes killed the sister.

BOY TELLS STORY

"Dad hadn't been working more than three days a week. Last summer mother was sick. He thought she lost her mind, but they told him it was only a nervous breakdown.

"I was a sophomore in high school. But now I guess I won't finish. Tuesday a letter came—Dad said it was about taxes. I knew something was wrong yesterday."

LEAVES DEATH NOTE

"Dear Ones All: This is a terrible thing to do but I cannot help it. I am so heart-broken I cannot help myself. The home is gone and I am left with all my hard work. Give my watch to Paul, my shotgun to Harold and my ring to Mildred. I want Morgan and Cash to be my administrators and I want Cash to keep Paul for me. Goodby all—Blaine."

Harold is Harold Crawford, Paul's 18-year-old married brother; Mildred is Mrs. Guy Spencer, a sister; Morgan Crawford is Paul's uncle and Cash is Cash Patterson, of Turtle Creek, brother-in-law of Crawford.

CONTEMPLATED ACT

Friends say Crawford has been considering suicide for some time. Worried by debt and lack of work, according to Coroner A. W. Dosch, of Armstrong County, Crawford killed his wife and daughter, wrote the note and killed himself.

His children are all by Crawford's first wife. Seven years ago he married the woman with whom he died.

COL. BUNDY PRAISES SERIES

Articles Reveal Real Facts About Great Problems of Conflict, Officer Says

By LIEUT. COL. C. T. BUNDY.

(Col. Bundy commanded Hampton's Battery, 107th Field Artillery, in the World War, was promoted to rank of major early in 1919. He is called an authority on the history of the Civil, Spanish-American and World Wars.)

I think the fine thing about the memoirs of Gen. Pershing which the Sun-Telegraph is about to publish is that they give the true, inside information about the immense problems confronting America when she entered the big fight.

They tell of the preposterous plans of many men and of the successful plans of a few. They tell of just what we went through in France, of just how unprepared we were. Best of all, they show Gen. Pershing's personality, show that he is a soldier, not a politician.

I've seen Pershing twice in my time. Once was during the Argonne offensive early in October, 1918. We were moving through Verennes.

Shells were falling on every side. We were near the front line, in easy artillery range. A big car was stopped by a huge hole a shell had dug in the middle of the road. While they waited for the debris to be cleared away, Pershing alighted.

The men were worn to a frazzle. They were downhearted and blue. The General walked among them cheering them up. Pershing said:

"Men, if you can stick a while longer, I'll get you out of here. We'll have this fight over with in a few weeks."

Then he drove on to the front line.

The other time was in Belgium, in February of 1919, a couple of days before I received my commission. He inspected our brigade. When he came to my battery, Battery B, he shook hands with me and I fell in on his left side, correct military form. He said to me:

"Come over on my right; we can talk better there."

Then he inspected every man in detail and passed on.

It is that man, with his lovable character, the man who visited the front lines, who cheered the soldiers, who took time to inspect individual men while disregarding the conventional place for an inferior officer who accompanied him, whose story I want to read in the Sun-Telegraph.

He is the man who led the Americans to victory, and who alone can tell the final chapter of America's part in the World War.

(Foregoing is the second of a series of comments by leading authorities on the value and importance of Gen. Pershing's Memoirs, which the Sun-Telegraph will publish exclusively, beginning January 12. Col. Bundy, a Pittsburgher, served in the Spanish-American War with Hampton's Battery, formed in 1861, and commanded the outfit composed of Pittsburgh men as captain during the World War, until his transfer to command of the Second Battalion. He served through some of the hottest conflicts in which American troops engaged. Col. Bundy is now associated with the 107th Field Artillery, National Guard, here.)

MAN WHO SHOT WIFE, SELF DIES

By GEORGE SHRADLE, Staff Correspondent.

BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 8.—Claude Williams, 38, railroad fireman who shot his wife and himself on the Courthouse steps here yesterday, as the outcome of domestic trouble, died this morning in the Rochester General Hospital.

Mrs. Williams, 30, is recovering in the same hospital from scalp and shoulder wounds inflicted by two bullets fired by her husband, from whom she was estranged. Jealousy was blamed for the tragedy.

The tragedy occurred a few minutes after Judge William A. McConnell had ordered the husband to pay $10 weekly for the support of their two boys, Harold, 10, and Robert, 5. The couple had been separated three months.

JURY TO PROBE PRISON FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Ohio penitentiary fire last Easter Monday, in which 320 convicts perished, probably will be investigated by the Franklin County grand jury, it became known today.

State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill, his special investigator Joseph D. Clear, and Prosecuting Attorney Don R. Hoskins and Assistant Franklin Rubrecht conferred late yesterday on the prison fire and it was said in official circles that the grand jury would consider the matter.

Although none of the officials was able to forecast indictments, they admitted that a new inquiry was about to begin based on the large file of evidence collected by the fire marshal's office both inside and outside of the prison.

LINGLE SLAYER BELIEVED HELD

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A solution of the mystery of the murder of Alfred E. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, has been reached, authorities claimed today, with the arrest of Lee Brothers, a St. Louis gangster, who was identified by several witnesses, they said, as the man who shot and killed Lingle last June 9. The identification, they said, was positive.

Brothers, it was revealed by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state attorney's office, was arrested by three detectives last December 21 in a Chicago apartment after he had been trailed to 12 different cities. He was known in Chicago as Louis (Buster) Bader. He denied he killed Lingle, but admitted, Roche said, that he was wanted in St. Louis for the slaying of John De Blasi, a service car driver.

Roche told newspapermen:

"This man will sit in the electric chair for the murder of Alfred E. Lingle. I'll stake my official reputation on that. If he is not the killer, then Lingle is still alive."

2 ACCUSED HELD IN STORE FIRE

Abe Bortz, of 2239 Wightman street, proprietor of the Bortz Cloak Company, 906 Fifth avenue, and an employe, Phillip Sisser, of 2235 Wightman street, were held for court on arson charges today in Central Police Court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

They were arrested in connection with a fire which partially destroyed Bortz's store December 1.

Fire Chief William Graves and Battalion Chief George Spahr testified oil-soaked paper was found between the first and second floor partitions and that paper cartons, filled with oil, were found in an anteroom.

It was testified also that a stock of dresses was found on the counters, and that the showcases were closed and empty. Bortz and Sisser denied the charges.

ROCKEFELLERS GET THREATS

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Extra precautions to guard the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller from cranks were taken after receipt of several threatening letters to his family. The letters are similar to those sent other prominent persons.

Heretofore the private police at the estate have been on duty in two shifts of 12 hours each. This has been changed to three shifts of eight hours each, with additional guards.

Rockefeller and his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., have received about 25 threatening letters each in recent months. John D. Rockefeller, the elder, is in Florida.

CELLS AWAIT BANK BANDITS

Prison cells today awaited two youths who less than a month ago accompanied four others to the Perry State Bank, Perrysville avenue, where they seized $5,000 at the points of revolvers and fled. Harry Hoover, 17, and Edward Pishner, 19, both of Akron, O., pleaded guilty in Criminal Court yesterday and were sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for 30 to 60 years.

A third, Emile Grayshock, 21, also of Akron, pleaded guilty to his part in the holdup, but his sentence was suspended and he was remanded to jail without bail, as was Louis Francis, 18.

Francis pleaded to having been an accessory after the robbery; Grayshock gave him a revolver and some of the money taken from the bank, Francis said.

Inspector of Detectives Frank Boyd told the court the fourth bandit, Bennie Lipkovitz, wounded when he tried to shoot a New York detective, is apparently recovering in a hospital there.

STRIKE LEADER TO SPEAK HERE

Criticism of City Council's $25,000 appropriation for relief of the unemployed will be made at a mass meeting in Carnegie Music Hall next Tuesday night, when William Z. Foster, leader of the 1919 steel strike, will be the principal speaker.

Officials of the Trade Union Unity League, which is sponsoring the meeting, said today that it is the beginning of a movement to be organized in Pittsburgh and nearby mining towns to demand additional aid from city and county officials, which will be carried on by hunger marches and other demonstrations.

At the Tuesday meeting a delegation will be named to join delegations from other centers in a trip to Washington for the purpose of demanding unemployment insurance.

Uses Fish Pole To Get Funds For Rent

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP)—A fish pole was the means by which the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of the Methodist Church of the Christian Center, collected the rent for a poor family in his parish.

Dr. Sockman, who is a fisherman of no mean ability, was approached by a man who asked for help. The minister, who had no money with him, suggested that the man go fishing with him. The man agreed and the two went to the Battery, where Dr. Sockman caught enough fish to pay the rent.

Police said Mrs. Nesbit's husband, Lester M. Shaddock, found the woman's body when he arrived home. He told police that he had not returned home at the time of the shooting. He found his wife's body lying in the kitchen.

for Readers who follow

Pershing's Own Story

READERS of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to follow this story from the very start—make it a daily study. Spread throughout the publication of the story a set of ten test questions pertaining to dates and episodes chronicled in the narrative will be published. Sun-Telegraph readers will be asked to submit their answers to these questions, based on information found in the story as it will appear in this newspaper, and also write a letter on "What is the most important episode chronicled in the Pershing memoirs published in the Sun-Telegraph and why?"—the letter to be of 200 words or less. This letter is included as a part of the contest because friends of General Pershing, and others who have read advance proofs of this dramatic narrative, claim that many of his statements will start much in the way of controversy.

Three thousand dollars in cash prizes are offered by the Sun-Telegraph to the readers who form this great class in history and who submit the correct or most nearly correct sets of answers and the best letters. A special board of competent judges, none of whom will be employes of the Sun-Telegraph, will be appointed to examine the answers submitted and make the awards.

The Sun-Telegraph readers who join this class in history will be divided into six sub-classes, as follows:

CLASS NO. 1—Grade School Children.
CLASS NO. 3—College Students.
CLASS NO. 4—School Teachers, Members of the Faculty of Schools and Colleges, Clergymen, and Members of Religious Orders.
CLASS NO. 5—Members of the American Legion and Other Organizations That Include World War Veterans.
CLASS NO. 6—All Other Readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

These sub-classes cover all walks in life, all vocations, all professions—an opportunity for young and for old. Five hundred dollars in cash prizes is allotted to each of the six classes, the awards to be divided as follows:

FIRST PRIZE	$200.00
SECOND PRIZE	100.00
THIRD PRIZE	50.00
FOURTH PRIZE	25.00

Intense Cold Fails to Freeze Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 8. — (AP.)—Great Salt Lake, one of the saltiest bodies of water in the world, can still rest on its record of never freezing.

A report that recent cold weather here—although it has not gone below zero—had succeeded in congealing the surface of the lake for about 1,000 feet from shore, was found to be without foundation.

Instead, reported J. Cecil Alter, government meteorologist, chunks of ice found floating in the briny water had been washed down from smelters and mills bordering the lake and were composed of fresh water.

The water in the lake is approximately 23 per cent solid matter, mostly salt.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should Wife Stand by Mate In Grave Situation?

Suppose your husband came to you and confessed that he was the father of another woman's child and asked you to take that child into your home and raise it as your own?

What would you do?

That's the terrible problem that has confronted Edith in this column. Have you an answer for her?

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I wonder if you can soften the blow that has suddenly fallen on me and tell me what to do. I feel as if I had been hit by a train. I am so filled with anger, resentment that I don't know which way to turn.

"It's my husband. For seven years I have trusted him and loved him and believed in him . . . and only a week ago he came to me and confessed to me that he has been having an affair with a young woman whom he met some months ago and that she is going to soon become the mother of his child.

"And Sally, he wants me to take that child and raise it. I am simply stunned. I don't know what to do. He insists that he never loved her . . . that he loves me, but that his affair with her was a sort of madness that came over him and swept him off his feet. And he wants me to forgive him for it. He has begged and begged me to.

Plans Adoption

"I don't know whether I can or not. We were always such good pals . . . always seemed to be so close to each other. And even these last few months since this has been going on we have never had any quarrels or trouble of any kind. The only difference was that he spent a little more time than usual away from home.

"I know now that he took this young woman on several business trips that he made out of town. But he says that he does not care any more for her at all . . . that he has gotten over his feeling for her completely. And (does it seem ironic to you?) it does to me. He says that she is not the sort of woman he would want to raise his child . . . and that she is frantic to get rid of it when it comes. She belongs to a family that fancies itself as being very high-hat and would be simply outraged should anyone ever find out about her disgrace. So she plans to go to another city, where she is not known, and pass as a widow until it is all over. Then, immediately, she will give the baby to someone for adoption. And my husband's plan is for us to adopt it.

Between Two Fires

"Oh, I don't know what to do! Sometimes I hate him! He has destroyed a faith that was so fine . . . and that meant so terribly much to me. Now, I'm not sure that I could stand to have him even touch me again, ever, even if he hadn't wanted to bring me that child. Don't you think he is asking more than any woman could do, when he asks me to forgive him, and take this child into our home?

"I feel as if my heart would break all over again every time I thought of it.

"He says that he knows he is asking a great deal, even when he begs for my forgiveness, but still he asks it. He begs me to forget that broken faith, and to try to love his stray child. And when I think back over our seven years of happy love and companionship, it just breaks my heart to think of breaking up my marriage.

"If anyone ever was caught between two fires, I surely am. I feel bruised . . . beaten . . . and hopelessly bewildered. I feel as if I just can't do what he asks . . . and yet I still believe that by the happiness we have known together. Please advise help me.

EDITH.

That's a terrible test, Edith, as regards best to do. A woman's faith in her husband is the foundation of her life. And to see that faith shattered, as you have, is a heartbreaking thing.

Promised to Stand By

Suppose your husband came and told you that he was about to go upon a difficult and dangerous adventure. Just for instance as a man depending upon his going upon that adventure . . . that he would be shamed and beaten forever if he did not go . . . would you help him?

Of course you would. Long ago you promised to stand by him through better or worse. You'd stand by him in his great crisis, no matter what it cost you, for you're that sort of a wife.

Well, your husband is asking you to do just that. He is asking you to stand by him now in the gravest moral adventure of his life. You are thinking only of the great wrong he has done you . . . of the way he has made you suffer . . . of the darkness that has fallen upon your home. And you have a right to think of that.

But if you really love him, you must think further. He has another duty now, as well as his duty to you . . . he has a duty to that poor little waif which his folly is bringing into the world. If you refuse to help him face that duty, he will go through life doubly branded. He will have failed his wife. He will have failed his child.

He Needs Help

If, on the other hand, you help him face that duty, you will have done the noblest thing that a woman can do. You will have helped him to redeem himself; you will have saved him and the baby and yourself from a life-long hell. And, on the ruins of your first sweet dream, you will build a greater, lovelier Reality.

You have a chance to do a very great thing, Edith. But don't start it unless you can see it through. Don't take the baby into your life unless you can do it with a whole heart. Don't try to go on with your husband unless you honestly love him enough to do so—and unless you can sincerely respect his repentance and his desire to atone. If you're going to nag—if you're going to be sorry for yourself, and take it out in tears and petty spites—leave him now and go out and make a new life for yourself.

Think it over. You've been studying him . . . now study yourself. Are you great enough to do this thing? He can't undo the black past. He can, if you'll help him, make a white future. Will you help him? You've boasted of your faith in him. Was a faith that never had to face a test really such a great affair? Now that the test has come—How much faith have you? How much courage? How much love?

That's my answer. But there's many a one who won't agree with me. So I'm asking you—and you and You—to tell this troubled wife what to do. What problem were Yours?

Oh, Those Hands!

Kerosene will clean the hands better than anything else after blacking a stove. Pour a little in the water, wash your hands in it and then wash with white soap and a brush. The kerosene will loosen the grease so it is readily washed out. Finish by using a hand lotion to keep the hands soft.

Even Slow Advancement in Right Direction Is Worthwhile, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Slowly, step by step in the right direction, many have improved themselves. They have overcome faults and failings which would have hindered their progress.

They studied and profited from mistakes and experience. They have been observing also and avoided the things that they have seen were not good for others, knowing that they would be no exception.

No matter how slowly you advance so long as it is in the right direction you are making worthwhile headway.

Progress at times can hardly be noticed, but it is there. Just so imperceptibly can one go in the wrong direction. Little by little becoming more accustomed to unworthy things, until at last a destination of despair and unhappiness is reached undreamed of in the beginning.

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel Veritzen Continues Letter from Father

I think I never have known fiercer anger than that which swept me when I heard Noel Veritzen repeat the slur upon all women which his father had voiced in the letter which the boy was repeating to me from memory.

No woman in the world is above a price of some sort, the elder Veritzen had said, and though I knew that he referred directly to Mary, I instantly had drawn the natural inference that I also was included in my employer's cynical list.

But the next instant shame as overpowering as the anger took possession of me. Was I so poor and selfish a thing, I asked myself hotly, that in this time of Noel's extremity I could think only of a possible insult to myself? I leaned forward, hoping that the boy had noticed nothing.

"That is the sort of cheap cynicism we must expect from your father's disordered mind," I said quietly. "Remember, Noel, that is what we must hold to—that your father is not himself."

"You are very—charitable," the boy said slowly. "I hope you are right."

"Suppose we leave that point now," I said. "Go on with the remembrance of the letter."

Deeply etched lines of pain showed around Noel's mouth.

"There isn't much more of it," he said, "but it's the worst. It—is—awful to think of—even—"

"And worse to put into words," I interrupted promptly. "But, dear boy, it is necessary. You yourself have decided that. So get it over with as quickly as possible, that we may determine what to do, and then we can push the whole miserable thing out of our memories."

"That will not be so easy," he answered grimly. "It will be no easier than telling you of my father's ruffianism, for that is what it is. Listen to what he said next:

"'You remember, Noel, of that girl's first escapade, when, as the masked dancer, she appeared nightly at that supper club with that unspeakable wastrel, Jack Leslie. You, unusually innocent and gullible, believed in her childlike innocence in that affair. But I, watching the thing from the first, although she never suspected my espionage, new better—'

"'I know better' on another point," I interrupted hotly. "Your father never suspected Mary's identity as the masked dancer until she herself confessed her escapade to him."

"I know that," Noel answered. Then, with halting, ashamed voice, went on with his recital.

"'If it had not been for you, Noel, I never should have permitted her to remain as my protege. No other pupil of mine ever thwarted my wishes in the slightest particular without instant dismissal. But I saw your infatuation and knew that any appearance of harshness on my part, until I could prove to you the girl's utter worthlessness, might hurry you into a 'chivalrous' marriage. That I was determined to prevent at any cost.

"'I imagine that I am confronted with the same danger now. But I am armed—effectually. I have proofs of the girl's perfidy to you which I can furnish you at any time. But I fear you are too infatuated to consider them. But your very infatuation will lead you to consider very seriously what I am now going to propose:

"'If you agree to give this girl up I will sacrifice my pride and keep my promise to make her the most famous Veritzen star—she has wonderful talent, I grant you that, and you ought to know it. She has played a most convincing role of injured innocence to you. I will do that and give her the money of which I spoke, even if she refuses the offer I made her—it makes no difference to me which relinquishes the other. My only aim is to prevent your marriage to one so unworthy of you.

"'But, now listen to this carefully—if you are so hopelessly infatuated that you refuse to give up the girl I will make her name a byword. No one save her family and yours knows of her escapade as the masked dancer. But if you do not give her up I will make it public, and I will add to it the other knowledge I have acquired concerning her. You know my power, the channels of publicity which I can control openly—and secretly. I shall use them all to brand her. I shall also use the power I have to make sure that neither she nor you can make even a decent living in this country.

"'You need not answer me now. Wait until I return to the city. But I am confident you will accept my offer. Starvation or the alternative of living off—'"

Noel's tortured eyes fell away from mine.

"I can't put the rest into words," he said.

"Don't try," I retorted promptly. "I can guess what he said. But, oh, Noel, Noel, what evil spirit possessed you to destroy that letter?"

He straightened himself as if suddenly electrified, while astonishment banished the shamed suffering from his eyes.

"Destroy the letter?" he repeated. "Of course I destroyed the awful thing. What possible reason could I have had for keeping it?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, January 9

A rather unimportant state of affairs is read from the ruling lunar and mutual aspects. There is a sign of personal inharmony and dissatisfaction leading to depression, irritability and possibly minor quarrels or contention. Correspondence or the signing of papers may be the cause of confusion, strife and dejection. Be on guard against litigation because of these.

Those whose birthday it is need not expect a particularly active or eventful year. There may be a disposition to depression, irritability and impetuous conduct, which may precipitate unhappiness and perhaps litigation. Be careful especially in personal correspondence and the making of legal papers.

A child born on this day may be prone to contention and strife, which may react on its own happiness and progress.

Household Hints

Avoid using too much soap on gilt china.

When washing fine lace, use two lumps of sugar to a basin of water instead of stiffening with starch. It makes a much better body.

Blue as the sky is the color your laundry water should be after you have poured in your bluing. Pour a little of the water into the cupped palm of your hand to test the shade.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informal Hospitality

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My girl friends are always inviting me to their homes to spend the evening and lately I have been making excuses for not accepting. Here is the trouble. I would like to ask them to my home and to give a party, but my mother is dead.

GERTIE.

I think that it would be charming every once in a while to plan a little informal party at your home, and invite some of your friends and some of his. This would be thoroughly correct and could be made a most delightful event. There needn't be much trouble about it. . . . invite your friends for tea some Saturday or Sunday afternoon, or for supper some evening. Have very simple, delicious things to eat, and plan some sort of entertainment, besides, "talking of this and that," if you think that this is necessary. Usually it isn't necessary.

Go about this planning at once and you will see how easy and how simple this kind of informal hospitality is. I don't like to think of your not accepting the sweet hospitality offered by your girl friends, and it really isn't necessary for you to do so. Plan the first party soon and let me help if you have any questions about it. Good luck to your pathway of hospitality . . . this being a fine hostess, even in the simplest of ways, is one of the great things in the world.

A Gracious Thank You Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received a gold piece as a Christmas gift from a client of the firm for whom I work. I would like to write a letter to this firm, the head is a woman—thanking her for the gift. As I have only met her once, is this the correct thing to do? How shall I word the letter?

A. O.

Yes, by all means you should write a letter to this kind woman for her goodness and thoughtfulness. Something like this might suggest a form to you:

My dear Miss Matthews:

How very kind you were, and how very thoughtful, to include me in your Christmas plans and to make me so happy by your goodness to me. I thank you with all my heart for your sweet graciousness.

The beautiful, shining gold piece is a precious possession and already I have planned wonderful things that it will buy. When I have decided just what is worthy of its gracious offering I shall take such pleasure in telling you of my decision. May I have this opportunity?

May every hour of your new year be full of happiness, Miss Matthews . . . you so deeply and highly deserve it, for you are so kind to others that this kindness should be a boomerang on your own life.

Most sincerely yours.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When the eyelashes are dyed, a piece of pasteboard cut the shape of a crescent is placed under the eye, and the lashes rest upon it. The coloring agent is applied with a fine camel's hair brush. Only a skilled operator should attempt this treatment because of the danger of dye dropping into the eyes.

The arch of the eyebrow should not be exactly in the center, but more toward the inner end. When the eyebrows are narrower, made thinner, hairs underneath should be weeded out, rather than those above. The faint hairline is out of style. It should never have been in, as it makes the face expressionless. If not bald.

Looking fit has such an inspiriting effect upon the mind that it should be a matter of habit. The woman who looks scrubby feels scrubby. A soiled housedress, shabby fingernails, whispy hair and runover slippers let a woman down. She loses her self-respect. Whenever she passes a mirror she wants to make faces at herself.

To reduce the size of the bust there is no exercise better than swinging Indian clubs, although any calisthenic movement that pulls hard on the chest muscles will produce a good effect. The same exercise that reduces a large bust will develop a small one.

Here are some rouge rules: The girl who has a plump face should place her factory blushes high, letting them extend up onto the eyelids. The woman with the forward-going, determined chin should touch it with rouge and it will be less prominent. When cheeks are hollow, no rouge should be applied in the centers.

Sudden depressions appearing for no reason at all are probably due to certain chemical changes going on inside the body. Women who are subjected to them should put themselves through a cross-examination. Are they eating too much, not enough, or the wrong kind of food? Are they getting sufficient sleep and outdoor exercise and drinking enough water?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Teach Child Good Food Habits

In considering the food requirements of children we must always keep in mind the fact that they are still growing. Children are exceedingly active and every day increases the size of their muscles and bones. This increase can proceed only if proper and plentiful supplies of food are at their disposal.

Dr. Copeland

As in the adult, the factors of wear and tear of the body must be considered. In the child an additional factor must be provided for, namely, growth. If the food supply of the child is scanty, growth is retarded.

Milk should form the basis of the child's diet. The child should not be allowed to become indifferent to milk and never actually develop a dislike for the important food. Almost without exception, the authorities state that each child requires a quart of milk daily. We can easily change the old saying to read "a quart of milk a day will keep the doctor away."

In general the child's food should consist of milk, eggs, cereals, vegetables and fruits. Meat should be served occasionally, but not daily and always in small amounts.

Foods should be either boiled, roasted or baked. I would advise against any fried foods for children. In preparing cereals they should be thoroughly cooked, preferably the night before and warmed for breakfast.

Rich and highly flavored foods are not advised. Children do not as a rule crave rich foods. They acquire the taste for sweets. The child who is not familiar with sweets will never crave them, and will be content with wholesome, bland foods. Condiments and spices are not to be included in the child's diet. These articles are intended to stimulate appetite and have no place in the child's food.

If children eat at the same table as the adults, care must be taken in the table conversation. If mother or father exposes a dislike for one particular food you may be assured that Tommy or Betty will soon indicate a dislike for the same food. Conversation at the table should at all times be pleasant and cheerful.

Never try to tempt children with delicacies. Neither is it wise to bribe them to eat. It is best to depend upon healthy exercise and plenty of fresh air to create the appetite. All other methods are artificial.

Answers to Health Queries

M. L. Q. What causes the ankles to feel hard and swollen?

A. May be due to poor circulation. Build up the general health and your circulation will improve.

* * *

Mrs. W. T. S. Q.—Is it safe to sit around and play all day in wet bathing suits? Will this cause appendicitis? How long should one wait before going into the water after eating?

A.—No, although this depends to some extent upon the underlying circumstances and the physique of the child. Not necessarily. At least an hour or so should elapse.

Did your Child have a bad cold last week?

If your child had a bad cold last week, don't be content just because the child is no longer hacking and sneezing. A cold is bad enough, but a child that catches cold easily and often, needs attention.

Half-sick, pale, run-down children do not have the strength to resist disease and throw off infection. The after-effects of a cold can be very serious. Start now to build up weight and strength.

Father John's Medicine has been proved for over 75 years by countless mothers. It is used regularly by over 184 institutions and hospitals. It is a simple food-medicine that supplies the vitamins that every child needs. Children thrive on it amazingly. Their appetite improves, their very food seems to do them more good. Pale cheeks glisten with health. Little bodies become strong and vigorous.

Father John's Medicine is a combination of simple food elements, none of which could harm an infant. Because of its scientific combination of ingredients it brings all the benefits of cod liver oil in the form best suited to a growing child's needs. It is easily assimilated by even the most delicate stomach. It tastes good and contains no alcohol or drugs.

If your child had a cold last week, start now with Father John's Medicine. Don't take needless chances when this simple aid will help build strength and vigor. All druggists have it.

There May be Poison in your Intestines!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition: coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The great difference it will make in your feelings over night will convince you of its merit.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need. Its natural, mild, thorough action, and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the largest selling laxative in drugstores everywhere.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

An aria from "Il Trovatore" enchants us tonight as Merle Alcock and Oliver Smith sing in duet the melodious "Home to Our Mountains." WCAE at 9:30.

James Melton, first tenor of the Revelers Quartet, is featured with Nat Shilkret's Orchestra in a new NBC program over KDKA at 8:30.

Lobo is dead. That means nothing to you unless you've been accustomed to tuning in Horace Heidt's Orchestra over WCAE. Lobo was the barking soloist in the signature song.

For his stunts on the stage and in radio he received $125 a week, part of which was tuned into vacations and part of which went into the bank book of his master and trainer, Clarence Moore, saxophonist in the orchestra. Clarence writes that "Lobo's" son is being trained to take his place.

Larry Jacobs, publicity director at the Fulton, tells us that Hollywood producers tried in vain to obtain "Lobo" and once offered Moore a year's contract and $5,000 cash for an outright purchase of the dog.

Moore would not part with "Lobo" who was faithful to the last, dying with whining eyes in the arms of his master.

Francis Owen wanted to call the police buggy last night when he returned from dinner to find a man gesticulating queerly before a microphone. Waving his hands like an auctioneer, the visitor chattered away in several dialects and acted for all the world like one of the "Nit Wits."

"Say what's the big idea?" Francis expostulated.

The visitor explained he was Tal Kaufman, practicing eight characters he will impersonate tomorrow night at 7:15 in a one-man one-act play, "The Mystery of the Ghandian Vase."

"BY THE WAY—"

Joe Weber and Lew Fields bring their German burlesque to WEAF-WCAE starting Saturday, January 31 at 8 o'clock. "Very amusing" is the reference Charley Horn makes to a recent article in a Pittsburgh paper that the Mussolini broadcast was relayed from Rome to London by landwire, then broadcast to the United States. . . . The program originated at 3RO in Rome and came direct to our country by short wave, writes Charley. . . . All announcers in Italy are women. . . . We suggest "correct time" wrist watches for Bill Hay and Jack Little, both late recruits in network broadcasts. . . . Jack, who still owns his $75,000 home that radio built in Cincinnati, broadcast one of his first programs at WCAE when Joe Sartory was announcer. . . . Not it was fan mail from the folk in the Middle West that caused NBC to hire him as a regular entertainer. . . . Jack was never in a New York studio until the last year, all other reports to the contrary.

* * *

That old vagary "If you aren't making $75 a week or better, write us," hit town last night . . . the music by Zoel Parenteau was great, as usual, but that cheap hokum, yow!

* * *

They tried television in Chicago last night . . . a million queer gadgets filled the studio of W9XAP as actors moved about in cotton uniforms and slippers to eliminate noise . . . wrist watches were taboo . . . strings of the piano were muffled with felt pads . . . because the creak of shoe leather would have given the impression of artillery in action, the men played in stocking feet . . . girls wore sandals . . . the actors looked like Hallowe'en ghosts with their makeup of heavy grease paint and mouth and eyes outlined in brownish-red . . . the microphone, suspended overhead to keep it out of the picture, was pitched so high that a lady-like sneeze would have recorded like a dynamite plant heaven-ward . . .

* * *

Lowell Thomas did a nice job of the Sun-Telegraph's report on the Bakerstown holdup the other night with the exception that he got his states mixed and called it "Bakerstown, Ohio" . . . Mary Garden is to be interviewed over WJAS next Friday afternoon at 2:30.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

That Amos 'n' Andy special announcement that has everybody guessing is to be nothing more than the story of a new mouth wash. Conjectures have been rife, many people suggesting that their time would be changed, that they would have a Sunday broadcast, etc. Rest easy, folks.

The Loudspeaker

—By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Leopold Stokowski, gazing into his crystal ball, predicts an orchestra of the future composed of electrical instruments.

And we have a notion that when the first one comes it will be conducted by Stokowski. The Philadelphia director is not only alert to all the new sound-making gadgets of electrical inventors, but he is spending all the time he can spare from the podium and the arranger's table studying the mechanics of broadcasting.

* * *

If you ask him why he, a musician, is so deeply absorbed in the engineering details of radio he will tell you that he does not wish to work in the dark, that in a development so fundamentally important he wants to know exactly what he is doing. And so today with the glibness of a radio talker he is able to discuss the range of volume control, transmitters—all the matters that come under the eyes of the studio technician.

* * *

According to Stokowski, some of the musical instruments we know today will be displaced within 50 years by new sound-makers—the children of radio and the vacuum tube. And he added, between puffs of a cigaret:

"Wagner wrote his music only 50 years ago for the symphony orchestra—but how could he foretell the existence of radio? How do we know that he would have scored his music as he did had he written it with radio in mind.

"Whether there are new musical instruments or not, certainly music will be written especially for radio. Radio is offering the modern composer the greatest opportunity he has ever had."

* * *

And yet, and yet we doubt if the modern composer, we are thinking chiefly of such men as Ravel, Stravinsky, Strauss, Sibelius, Schoenberg, even our own Taylor, Cadman, Carpenter and Gruen, will be taking advantage of the greatest opportunity he has ever had. We have still to hear of a work by any of the more distinguished modern composers that has been written expressly for the radio. And no one has yet reported that any such work is contemplated.

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a new-fangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

Cut This Out.

Old English Preparation For Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this paragraph and hand it to them, and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. We believe that catarrh, catarrhal deafness, head noises, etc., are caused by constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint, and seldom if ever give permanent relief. This being so, much time has been spent in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic, that should quickly expel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated is given below in an understandable form, so that any one can use it in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist one ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, deafness, dizziness, ringing, buzzing, etc., while the hearing should rapidly return as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the Parmint. Loss of smell and taste, stopping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison and which are often overcome by this efficacious treatment. If nearly ninety per cent of all catarrhal ills must be among people who have tried everything else. Even if you have been afflicted by this simple home treatment.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE: LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Magician in Year 3766 B. C. Gave a Performance, Says Thurston

By GEORGE SEIBEL

HOWARD THURSTON, that amiable master of the black art who is paying his annual visit to the Art Theater, will be the guest of the Pittsburgh magicians tonight at the William Penn Hotel, for a midnight banquet. Midnight is the hour when wizards and witches are supposed to be abroad indulging in wicked rites, but tonight all of them will gather around the festive board to make merry. Thurston will find that there are now about 50 professors of the mystic cult here, who are adept in palming, sawing a lady in two, rope-tying and similar magical practices.

George Seibel

But Thurston has a wide acquaintance, of course, with hundreds of historic figures renowned in annals of magic. He is especially well-read on the history of the famous Cagliostro, who claimed to be a real magician, and that of Robert-Houdin, the most ingenious master of illusions that ever lived.

Perhaps his acquaintance goes even further back to the days of Jannes and Jambres, the magicians of Pharaoh who, as the greatest experts in brought suit against Moses. [illegible] Sunday evening he is to speak at the Temple of Life Synagogue, for his friend, Rabbi Herman Hagerin, and after he made [illegible] about the famous contest when rods were turned into serpents and water into blood.

THE FIRST MAGICIAN

"Who was the first magician I asked Thurston, and he was ready with the answer.

"In the year 3766 B. C. a certain Tchatcha-em-ankh gave a performance before King Khufu, which is described in a papyrus kept in the British Museum. He did the decapitation trick and apparently was able to hypnotize lions. That is the first magical seance described, but the art must already have been old, for pictures of puzzles with cups and balls are found in more ancient hieroglyphs.

"And whom do you consider the greatest of magicians in recent times?" I asked next—and this was a harder question to answer.

"Bautier de Kolta," he ventured at last. "Two of his illusions, the Vanishing Lady and the Black Art, are the most ingenious and effective invented since Robert Houdin. But Bautier de Kolta was really two people—Bautier, a Frenchman born in Lyons, and de Kolta, a Hungarian of noble origin. The two necromancers visited the leading capitals of Europe for a number of seasons, then de Kolta disappeared and no one knows what became of him. Bautier took the double name and made it illustrious in the annals of magic. He invented the Flying Bird-Cage, the Multiplying Billiard Balls, and many other astonishing pieces of apparatus."

Many people will remember when the Vanishing Lady was so popular that this illusion was introduced in hundreds of theatrical performances all over the country, though it had nothing whatever to do with the show.

THE KING OF CARDS

Another question elicited from Thurston some information about

"Angelo Lewis, who wrote under the nom de plume of Prof. Hoffman, gives the credit to a man named Charlier, who lived in London, but may have been French, Turkish or Greek. He lived off the Strand, in a tumble-down workshop where he marked cards, and spoke so many languages, had been in so many cities, that there was a superstitious legend afloat that he was Ahasuerus, the Wandering Jew. The conjuror Maskelyne knew Charlier and thought he must have been a card sharp in his youth. He disappeared like de Kolta, and there are many legends about him—one man saw him at Nice, another in San Francisco, but all agree that he could do anything with a pack of cards."

Those old disciples of the art of hocus-pocus were none of them such pleasant and agreeable persons as their modern disciple at the Alvin Theater. Thurston is a prince of good fellows, which is why the mystic adepts of every city invariably honor him as those in Pittsburgh will today at the witching hour of midnight.

Two New Pictures Open Here Today

"Man to Man," screen adaptation of Ben Amos Williams' story, "Barber Johns's Boy," comes to the Enright today. Phillips Holmes, star of "Hot Mary," heads the cast. Dick Powell will offer "Syncopated Wedding" on the stage.

"Mother Cry" comes to the Warner screen today. It is based on Helen Grace Carlisle's novel of the same name.

Beginning Saturday, the Harris will present the film, "A Soldier's Plaything," starring Ben Lyon, Lois Locker, Fred Kohler, Noah Beery and Harry Langdon. The stage will offer a vaudeville program.

Stage Feature

ABOUT ATTRACTIONS COMING TO LOCAL PLAYHOUSES

The much-talked-of comedy success, "Young Sinners," will be presented in the Shubert Alley the week beginning Monday January 26. Next Monday Thurston will open a second week in that theatre.

"Bird in Hand," the comedy to be presented by George Sharp in the Pitt next week, was written by John Drinkwater and produced originally at the Royale Theater, London.

"ROYAL FAMILY" COMING

The Emil Jannings talkies, "The Blue Angel," having been banned by the Pennsylvania board of censors, the Fulton and Sheridan Square theaters will offer beginning tomorrow Paramount's oral film version of the Ferber-Kaufman stage comedy hit, "The Royal Family." Ina Claire and Frederic March are co-starred. The film is known as "The Royal Family of Broadway."

Conrad Nagel and Genevieve Tobin, the stars of "A Lady Surrenders," are again co-featured in "Free Love," which comes to the Stanley screen tomorrow. Ed Lowry's stage offering, "Paintin' the Town," will feature Don Bestor and his band.

"One Heavenly Night" opens tomorrow in the Penn. Louis Bromfield wrote the story and Sidney Howard adapted it. Evelyn Laye, English actress, and John Boles are the featured players.

Fairbanks, Sr., May Make Films While Hunting In the Orient

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.

Stormy weather under the open skies will mean nothing to Douglas Fairbanks during his big game hunting trip in the Orient. He carries a special sleeping bag, equipped with a zipper, the gift of Mary Pickford.

A cameraman, Henry Sharp, goes [illegible] by the expedition. Doug may pay for his trip from the proceeds of short subjects photographed in the jungle. The film adventurers carry sound equipment in addition to a camera.

Accompanying Douglas Fairbanks, Victor Fleming, the director; Chuck Lewis, former football star and for many years Doug's trainer, and Henry Sharp, who has photographed a number of the star's pictures.

Douglas Fairbanks

The expedition plans to go to Siam, Indo-China, Africa and perhaps a few more points.

During the trip Doug will meet the King of Siam, who probably is the only remaining monarch he has not had an audience with.

BUY HUGHES' STORY

Now that he has stopped writing directly for the screen, Rupert Hughes is earning even more money from the film rights to his novels.

Paramount has just purchased "No One Man," now running in the Cosmopolitan, for an unnamed sum. It may be noted, however, that Mrs. Hughes received $75,000 for the rights to "Ladies Man," which William Powell has just completed.

LATEST GOSSIP

Helen Twelvetrees has left for New York without saying why or when, surprising even Pathe, which had made several publicity appointments for her. As she is on vacation, she probably thought she didn't need to check out. . . . Paramount's billing arrangement with Fox provides that Victor McLaglen's name has to appear over that of Marlene Dietrich in advertising the German star's second picture, "Dishonored." . . . Will Rogers five body-guards in a scene of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" will be Jim Musick, Ernie Pinckert, Don Moses, Tay Brown and Waid Bond, all of the University of Southern California football team. . . . Out of the 125 dancing girls once under contract to Fox, only 10 have remained at the studio. They are not under contract but get a stipulated sum each week for working as extras. . . . Dorothy Mackaill is home with flu, forcing the "Party Husband" company to shoot scenes in which she does not appear. . . . Oscar, Paramount studio bootblack and actor, will take an act out on the Publix circuit. . . . Kay Francis and Kenneth McKenna seem to be that way about each other. . . . Joe Donahue arrived in Hollywood from New York on Monday and was cast and working in "Party Husband" by noon.

COMEDY TEAMS THRIVE

The once-predicted demise of the comedy teams seems to have been a little late in arriving. Fox is preparing to co-feature Warren Hymer and Spencer Tracy in "The Fatal Wedding." The picture goes into production on the fifteenth. This will be the comedy teams' second picture together. "Up the River," their initial vehicle, was quite a success. The new story is by Basil Woon and James Hanley. Hanley used to be a song-writer, but turned over a new leaf.

Township Heads To Meet in Phila.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 8. (AP.)—Philadelphia was selected as the place of the 1932 convention by the Pennsylvania State Association of First Class Townships at its final session here. The time was left to the decision of the executive committee. The final session was devoted to approval of the draft of the township law revision commission, including several minor changes suggested, and to the adoption of several resolutions to be presented to the Legislature.

Lines to a Lady

Supposing, sweetheart, I were lying lifeless in a shroud,
And there were grieving relatives and others by my bier,
Would you come forward from the mourners, unashamed, and proud,
But broken-hearted—weep a little—so they all could hear?

I really think it would be tactless of you if you did.
They'd question and embarrass you and your right to be there,
And from the dismal chamber where I'd lie, I'm sure they'd bid
You leave the place—and that would be too much for you to bear.

And so I wouldn't make display of grief, if I were you.
I wouldn't let them know that we were such devoted mates,
They wouldn't understand our kind of love—they never do!
And, anyway, there's privacy in cemetery gates.

—Melancholy Baby.

Recognition

Frances Williams, of "The New Yorkers" troupe, was lashed by George Jean Nathan in one of his reviews recently. Last night the attractive songstress was discussing Mr. Nathan's word abuse.

"Did you see what your friend Nathan wrote about me?" she pouted. "He sure was mean."

"Oh, don't mind him," we replied. "George is always mean."

"Oh, I don't care," Frances snapped. "There's one comforting thought, however. I've been in ever so many shows that he has reviewed—and this is the first time he's noticed me!"

Counsel

From Burton Rascoe: Don't be afraid to take it on the chin. Let the other guy break his knuckles.

The Retort Swell

It is supposed to have happened near the huge holiday tree at Forty-third street and the Square, where one of the numerous breadlines Gives You a Rough Idea.

A fellow who didn't have to be so ugly rebuffed a beggar with this:

"You had better ask for manners than money!" he groaned.

"I asked," replied the mendicant, "for what I thought you had the most of."

Oop!

At a recent Friars' testimonial dinner to those very amusing clowns, Clayton, Jackson & Durante, Capt. Irving O'Day, the roastmaster, referred to them as:

"Jimmy Durante and his pair of Paul McCulloughs!"

'Walter (Legs) Winchell'

". . . Incidentally, there has recently spread a lot of talk, in and out of night clubs that Walter Winchell 'will be bumped off within a few months.' Those of his admirers who are terrified by this bit of inside information, will, perhaps, feel a little more at ease if they know that the one who started this rumor circulating was none other than yes, our Mr. Walter Winchell, the man who knows everything.". —Radio Digest for January.

Curses! Discovered!

Boomerang

When one of Charles Dillingham's productions was polishing off its rough edges in Philadelphia, the company manager had a difficult time with the chorus girls, who kept smoking ciggies between scenes. He urged them to stop, but they suddenly went deaf. The officious manager decided to complain to the fire department.

A fireman was detailed to the scene and the manager met him at the stage door. He was going to show them all where they got off, all right, all right.

The first person the fireman encountered smoking a cigaret was Charles Dillingham, the owner of the show. Mr. D. was arrested and fined.

Quiteso, Quiteso

Observed over the bar of a speakeasy patronized chiefly by the literati:

"An old timer is one who can remember all the way back when trash was something you put into garbage cans instead of magazines."

In Case You Didn't Know

Speaking of breadlines as we were a paragraph or so ago, one Broadway man started a breadline on Forty-second street years ago and kept it going until a series of devastating sour breaks floored him. He owned a grill in the Knickerbocker Building, which brought him more trouble, yet he kept his breadline alive nightly at 9 p. m.

The lads who collected there received two-bits each. It wasn't much, but it purchased some coffee and rolls, or a bed, perhaps.

Most interesting to us, at any rate, was that his name was Ben E. Fechtor, and if you said it fast—it was appropriate—benefactor.

Description

Observation

The man who shattred the editor's theory, viz: "That no story lasts over nine days," was "Daddy" Browning, who certainly has hogged the front pages longer than any other news bait. You'd think—wouldn't you?—that Browning had enough attention called to his name, but, no—he still is publicity-struck.

For evidence look at the building in which he offices near Sixty-first street and the Canyon. He recently purchased giant-sized letters to spell out the name Browning, the lettering consuming almost half a block.

In fewer words, Browning, a realtor, has his name in larger letters on Broadway than any other person.

Add Similes

Nifty

After witnessing "Once in a Lifetime," the devastating travesty on Hollywood, Ina Claire was asked if she had ever seen anything funnier.

"Yes," said Ina, "Hollywood."

New M. C. Booked For Klein's Plaza

Eddie Cox, a veteran of the stage, will make his debut tomorrow evening as the new master of ceremonies at Eddie Klein's Plaza. He will succeed Jack White, who will close his stay tonight with a farewell party. Vic Irwin and his orchestra will continue.

Bellevue Guild To Hold Dinner

The Westminster Guild, of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, will hold a pot luck dinner followed by a bsiness session at 6:45 p. m., tomorrow in the church social rooms.

THURSTON TALK TOPIC GIVEN

"The Religion of a Magician" will be the subject of an address by Howard Thurston, magician, at a meeting of the Men's Club of the Tree of Life Synagogue, in the synagogue Sunday night.

Rabbi Herman Hailperin, of the congregation, is an amateur magician, a member of the Society of American Magicians, and a friend of Thurston. Rabbi Nathan Krass, of Temple Emmanuel, New York, also a member of the society, will be present. Rabbi Krass, whose congregation is one of the largest in the United States, is widely known as an amateur magician.

STATION STREET SHIFTS HEARING ENDS

Urge Bettis Field Air Mail Office

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

It is so seldom that we have a word of commendation for, for that matter, of criticism for Public Safety Director Clark that we leap to the typewriter to laud the director's decision to allow the apple men to sell tangerines also. The tangerine has never had the recognition it deserves. A small, roundish fruit, it is easy to peel. It doesn't squirt juice in your eye, and that's more than you can say for a fire hose.

The tangerine is, after all, a small orange but it is handier to carry and its juices are not so enthusiastic, albeit this lack of enthusiasm is at the sacrifice of a by-product—tangerine juice.

We believe that Director Clark acted wisely in allowing the street sale of tangerines—and we're going to be mightily disappointed if the tangerine interests don't get together and advertise:

"PFARR FAVORS THE TANGERINE."

The papers reprinted some of Abe Martin's humor when the author, Kin Hubbard, died recently, but it seems to us they all overlooked two of the Indiana philosopher's best. "Prohibition," wrote Abe a few years after the law was passed, "is better'n no liquor at all." And (2) "He visited his mother-in-law anyhow."

Former Gov. Tener has been elected to the board of directors of the Philadelphia National League ball club, but his duties as a director will hardly hold the glamour that he found when he was a pitcher for Pop Anson's White Stockings years ago. Those were the most interesting days of his varied, successful career, and to prove it, he tells a story.

Mr. Tener was governor at the time. A politician who had pushed a bill through the Legislature was present when Gov. Tener applied his signature.

"Governor," said the politician, "you have enjoyed a great and brilliant career but your act in signing this bill is the greatest you have ever performed."

"Aw," the governor retorted, "I shut out the Giants once."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 8. The Senate passed a bill appropriating 15 million for food but the House of Representatives (up to this writing) had not approved it. They said no. They seem to think that's a bad precedent to appropriate money for food. It's too much like the "dole." They think it would encourage hunger. The way things look, hunger doesn't need much encouragement. It's just coming around naturally.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Playground Hearing Set for Wednesday

City Council next Wednesday will listen to the arguments of residents of the Thirty-first Ward regarding the proposed playground for the district, which comprises the former borough of Hays and Lincoln place. Truck, Car Systems Proposed By Postmasters; Division Chief to Submit Project

Postmasters of McKeesport, Braddock, Wilmerding, East Pittsburgh and Homestead conferred with M. E. Evans, superintendent of the Fifteenth division, Railway Mail Service, in the Century Building yesterday regarding establishment of a branch air mail postoffice at Bettis Field.

Government-owned trucks in relay, street cars and contract service were discussed as possible methods of transportation to consolidate mail service and afford outlets for points outside Pittsburgh.

At present, surrounding towns have no connective facilities for air mail route 34, New York to Kansas City, except through Pittsburgh, and service only once daily at Bettis Field on route 11, Cleveland to Pittsburgh.

Supt. Evans will submit the matter for consideration of the Post Office Department in Washington next week.

WIFE DENIES DESERTION

Filing an answer in Common Pleas Court to her husband's suit for divorce, denying she had deserted him, and charging he had deserted her, Mrs. Elizabeth Nevin Jennings, of 3 Linden place, Sewickley, accompanied this with a petition that the court grant her counsel fees and expenses to contest the suit. Her husband is Charles McC. Jennings, 5426 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Jennings declared her husband agreed to pay her $500 a month to support herself and their two children, when they parted July 29, 1921, but charged he neglected to keep up the payments since 1922. The couple were married January 2, 1912, and lived together a little over nine years.

Wrapped in a heavy blanket with a can of powder and a broken milk bottle at its side, the baby was found by Dr. S. L. Kalinowski, a dentist, whose office is on the second floor of the building, police said.

Physicians said the waif was in sound health.

STORE ROBBERY SUSPECT IN JAIL HERE

Two Alleged Bakerstown Postoffice Prowlers, One Bullet Victim, Held

Donald Fleming, 19, of Grove City, alleged to be one of the two robbers routed early Tuesday from the general store and postoffice of Carl Heckert, at Bakerstown, was in the county jail today following his capture and that of his companion when police say, they attempted to steal gasoline for their automobile at Elmo, Clarion County, early yesterday.

IN JAIL HOSPITAL

Fleming's alleged accomplice, Merle Tearce, 19, also of Grove City, will be returned here when he recovers from bullet and shotgun wounds believed inflicted by Heckert in routing the pair from the store and postoffice. Tearce was wounded in left hand and thigh and in the back. He is in the hospital of the Franklin jail.

Their capture came, police allege, after they tried to steal gasoline from the automobile which county detectives said they had stolen in Butler. Without funds they stole the gasoline from a roadside service station. Fleming, caught by the proprietor, while Tearce drove away. State police who were summoned, arrested Fleming. Tearce was captured a short time later when the automobile had skiddded into a ditch a short distance away.

AUTO STOLEN

Their alleged robbery career, police stated, began early this week with the theft of a bicycle, and was followed with the stealing of the car. Fleming admitted robbing the Bakerstown store, but denied complicity in others, detectives reported.

Two Negro bandits last night held up a clerk in the Vogel Brothers meat market, at 1308 Forbes street, and looted the cash register of $50. They escaped in an automobile.

FOSTER HONORS PLANNED HERE

Organizations in various sections of the Pittsburgh district will observe the sixty-seventh anniversary of the death of Stephen C. Foster next Tuesday. The chief ceremony will be that of the Civic Club of Allegheny County in Allegheny Cemetery at 4:15 p. m., when the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak and a wreath will be placed on the grave of the famous composer by J. O. Taylor. Music will be furnished by the Manchester Educational Center Choral Society, under direction of Will Rhodes.

In the evening the Tuesday Musical Club will hold a program in Carnegie Music Hall, when a special program of Foster melodies will be held.

During the day and evening the chimes in Calvary Episcopal and the Highland Presbyterian Chuches, in Pittsburgh, and St. Stephen's Church, Sewickley, will ring, while organists and orchestra leaders in theaters will include Foster numbers in their programs.

Women to Be Told South Church Plans

Plans for a church to be erected in Orangeburg, S. C., will be told by the Rev. Robert W. Patton, director of the American Church Institute for Negroes, and field director of the Field Department of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, at the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Pittsburgh in Calvary Church tonight. ROWLEY CASE COSTS SPLIT

E. H. Rowley, stock broker tried on a charge of fraudulent conversion, was found not guilty as directed by the court, and costs divided between the defendant and the prosecutor in a sealed verdict read today before Visiting Judge R. L. Hildebrand.

The court ordered Rowley acquitted late yesterday after testimony had been concluded. Mrs. Gertrude S. Warren, of 316 Sheridan avenue, the complainant, had testified Rowley had returned her $5,000 representing the principal invested in a stock deal, but that $6,000 profits had been lost along with Rowley's fortune in the stock market crash. Rowley testified he was told by Mrs. Warren to use her profits, if necessary, to protect his stocks.

Utilities Clash With City And Pennsy on Plans; Postoffice Parley Called

Testimony was completed late today before the Public Service Commission in the dispute between the city and the Pennsylvania Railroad on one hand and utility companies on the other regarding relocation of streets adjacent to the proposed new Pennsylvania Railroad station.

An early decision was anticipated that plans for the project may be pushed.

The railroad and the city favor the 1930 plan, which calls for the vacation of Liberty avenue from Eleventh to Twenty-first streets, and the widening of Penn avenue to take care of the traffic.

FAVOR 1925 PROPOSAL

The utilities favor the 1925 plan, which involves widening of Spring way from Eleventh to Seventeenth streets and leaves Penn avenue in its present lines.

Attorneys for the Pittsburgh Railways Company claim the 1930 plan would hamper the trolley service, deprive the company of a track franchise without adequate return, cut the Seventeenth street inclined plane from communication with the street, and bring big expense in changing facilities.

POSTOFFICE CONFERENCE

Seeking to solve the expected traffic problem at the proposed $8,000,000 federal building and postoffice, members of the Better Traffic Committee are scheduled to meet this afternoon in the Council chamber, City-County building. The meeting was called as a result of notification from postal authorities that the proposed automobile ramp from Grant street had not been included in building plans.

Government officials informed members of the traffic group and also city officials that if such a ramp was wanted the city would have to purchase the needed land from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and pay for the building of the ramp. The cost of such an addition to the building is estimated at $75,000.

MUNHALL PLANS SCHOOL ANNEX

Excavation for a nine-room addition to the Munhall Junior High School is scheduled to begin Monday, the contract having been awarded at a special meeting last night of the Munhall Board of Education to the Morgan Company of Homestead on its bid of $87,500. The annex, to be constructed of red brick, is expected to be ready for occupancy next September. When it is completed 40 rooms will be available at the school.

Youth Held to Court In Theft from Mail

W. C. Meehan, 19, of 3523 Centralia street, Sheraden, was held for court under $1,000 bond by a United States commissioner yesterday, after George V. Craighead, postal inspector, testified the youth, a special delivery boy, had taken money and checks from Christmas mail.

Building Permit Issued at Avalon

Capt. J. N. Arthur, borough manager of Avalon, has issued a permit to A. G. Davis for remodeling a two-story dwelling at 710 Florence avenue into a duplex at an estimated cost of $3,500.

Students Use New Means To Get Education

College students working their way through school have resorted to some unusual means of earning money this year. Part time jobs ordinarily available for students have been snapped up by unemployed full-time workers.

Harold Brennan, a student at Carnegie Tech, was commissioned to decorate a Christmas tree and construct an elaborate scenery of lakes, snow and waterfalls.

Harry Schenck, also at Tech, lost his job in a steel mill and read tea leaves in a downtown tea room. Asked what he knew about reading tea leaves, he replied:

"I use psychology!"

Boys at Pitt cover a wide range of originality in employment. They are professional pall bearers, attendants at miniature golf courses, demonstrators of coffee at parties and stores.

They cut kindling wood, clean wall paper, beat rugs, wash screens and windows, clean cellars, repair radios and help families to move.

Park Heads Take Beetle Quarantine Lightly

A Japanese beetle quarantine is in effect over Schenley Park, according to a bulletin from the State Department of Agriculture, but it's news to the park authorities.

Since the visit of state beetle hunters here last summer, Schenley Park has been considered a slightly infested area. Park officials say the state men divided the park into squares and went over the whole territory with a fine-tooth comb, discovering three beetles.

Since that time the beetles have gone into winter quarters, so that it is almost impossible to keep tab on them. Anyway, the park superintendent says that no shrub or nursery stock is moved out of the park, and that if the beetles get tired of life there about the only way they can get out is to fly out on their own wings or attach themselves to a pedestrian.

HELPING HAND RELIEF WORK ENLARGED

More Men Given Beds and Meals During December; 62 Per Cent Are Citizens

The Helping Hand Association has set up a new record for assisting unemployed men at the headquarters in Water street, according to reports for December, compiled for the Federal government by Attorney Harry I. Miller, executive secretary of the association.

During the month, 40,059 men were lodged and 105,954 meals served, compared with 34,407 lodged and 57,305 meals served during November.

STAFF ENLARGED

During December 1,192 beds were in operation, compared to 1,000 in November. A permanent staff of 225 men was maintained, compared with 175 men in November.

Sixty-two per cent of the men aided were citizens of the United States. Of the total, 79 per cent were white men and approximately one-half of these were foreign-born. The figures show 94 per cent were unmarried. About 2 per cent of the total had a college education.

COMPANIES AID EMPLOYES

Large corporations of the Pittsburgh district have been taking care of their own employes, Miller said. Some of the men who applied for help have registered as former employes of Pittsburgh corporations, but it was declared investigation had proved this false in almost every case.

Although the large companies have taken care of their own men, they have made big donations in equipment to the association.

SHIPPERS PLAN TARIFF FIGHT

What stand Pittsburgh district shippers should take on the proposed new tariff covering stopping of cars in transit to partially unload or to complete loading, was to be discussed today at a meeting of the shippers council of the Chamber of Commerce. At present there is a charge of $6.50 per car per 48 hours stop in transit.

The hearing on the new tariff will be held before the railroads' general committee in Chicago next Tuesday. One of the provisions in the new tariff would prohibit the stopping of cars for loading or unloading within switching limits. Last year a proposal to raise the tariff from $6.50 to $10 per car per 48 hours was defeated in Chicago, local shippers under direction of the Pittsburgh Chamber fighting the increase.

Following is a list of representative cars:

Here is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 17 to 24, inclusive.

One or two puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which are hidden several words, will be published every day in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and to name the hidden words in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 15. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon, Friday, January 16. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 19, and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph January 20.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME. WRITE THE NAMES OF THE CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE HIDDEN WORDS OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember, it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

The contest started December 28. If you have missed any of the puzzles you can get back copies of the Sun-Telegraph by addressing the circulation department. Send three cents for daily papers or 10 cents for Sunday's or the equivalent in postage stamps.

BUSINESS MEN RALLY FORCES IN DRIVE

Anti-Saloon League Leaders To Canvass for Support Of Law; Meeting Tonight

The central committee of business men leading the Pittsburgh drive of the Anti-Saloon League to obtain support for prohibition laid further plans for expansion last night at a meeting at the Union Club. A dinner meeting will be held tonight at the University Club to stress the accomplishments of prohibition.

The meeting last night was attended by about one-half of the committee of 22, other members being out of town. Business leaders of the community, excepting those who are known to favor the wet cause, will be canvassed personally for both moral and financial support.

The gathering tonight will be addressed by Marcus W. Acheson, Jr., and A. Marshall Thompson will preside. Guests who are known to be friends of prohibition have been invited personally by leaders of the movement. It is planned to hold a number of such meetings in organizing the prohibition forces.

The organization here is a part of a nation-wide campaign. Similar work has already been carried on in other cities in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware, and has just been started in Cleveland and Youngstown, O.

ARREST WOMAN IN RUM RAID

Two prohibition agents sat in a liquor-laden automobile in a garage in the rear of 1604 Cliff street, waiting for its owner to come in early today.

In connection with the seizure, police said they arrested Mrs. Josephine Bosco, 48, of the Cliff street address.

Confiscation of several gallons of gin and moonshine in a store at 2235 Center avenue, by prohibition agents, led to the arrest of Mike Ray, 35; Matthew Ray, 25, and Bert Clapp, 44, according to the agents.

Mrs. Martin Leff, 26, of 3857 Beechwood boulevard, was released on bond following the seizure of 78 quarts of whisky and five gallons of alcohol in her home, agents said.

CHAIN STORES ENLARGE FIELD

Several new Kroger stores will be established here, many will be moved and others will be remodeled, it was announced today by John Holdcraft, branch manager here, as word was received from Cincinnati that the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company has launched a $2,000,000 national rehabilitation program. Each store to be remodeled in turn will be closed for a period and reopened when the work is completed.

GIRL FLIERS UP 4TH DAY

IMPERIAL, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Their goal the 645-hour men's endurance flight record, Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper began their fourth day in the air today over Imperial County Airport, whence they were driven yesterday from Los Angeles by adverse weather.

The feminine endurance team, which exceeded Tuesday the former women's endurance record, flew on today, despite rainstorms and mishaps.

The skies in the direction of Los Angeles, 150 miles away by air line, were scanned anxiously by the fliers, who hoped for a chance to return to their starting point. Their quest for a new official record would prove fruitless should they be forced down elsewhere.

A communication dropped by Miss Cooper, former film actress, yesterday, indicated the grind was not yet tiring the girls.

20th Century To See Two Comedies

On Thursday, January 22, the drama committee of the Twentieth Century Club will present two comedies by the well-known English actress and playwright, Gertrude E. Jennings. "Between the Soup and the Savoury" and "The Pros and Cons" are the titles of the two presentations. January 15, by the way, is the last day for receiving manuscripts in the original play contest which the committee is conducting.

The current interest committee has arranged for talks at its meeting next Thursday. John W. Oliver, of the City-Planning Commission, will speak concerning the Point Memorial, and Mrs. Ruth Crawford Mitchell, who is in charge of the interior plans for the Cathedral of Learning, will speak of them.

The theremin, which the club is seeing demonstrated this afternoon, is an instrument which produces musical sound by exclusively electrical means. It has no keyboard, strings or reeds, and employs radio tubes, two metal bars as antennae and a loudspeaker. One antenna, a straight perpendicular bar, controls tone or pitch, and the other, a looped horizontal bar, controls volume or intensity. When any object, such as the human hand, is brought into the sensitive electrical field surrounding the vertical antenna, musical sounds are produced.

DESIGNER PRESENTS SPORTS ENSEMBLE FOR EARLY SPRING

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Fur is playing its long suit this season in the form of long coated suits. Sports suits of supple skins with a thin quality that permits of treatment with a minimum of bulk have made their appearance here and will no doubt be exploited for early spring wear when a sports ensemble or walking suit is demanded. These suits are, of course, most simply made, as any elaboration of theme or trimming would be entirely out of place and make the garment and the wearer appear ridiculous. The younger set will likely be most enthusiastic about these suits, particularly as it is a fashion eminently suitable for the trim, youthful figure and for the athletically inclined.

* * *

THE DRAWING shown here is a model of the fur suit about which we have just advised you. It is sponsored by Calot, who has made it in a very thin and supple kid in a lovely shade of blue. It has a long, belted coat and a circular skirt. Squirrel fur, dyed a soft shade of tan, edges the scarf collar and the front of the coat. A strip of the fur, placed diagonally, trims the quite simple sleeve. It is a pity that this sketch cannot convey a more adequate idea of the charm and originality of this model; but it will serve to show how very trim the lines are.

* * *

again and will no doubt be found at winter resorts this season. Its lustrous surface makes it most appropriate for evening and formal wear and it needs little other embellishment than its own charm to make it attractive to women of all types. Molyneux is one of the designers who has used satin for some of his best models and from his new collection we have chosen a representative mode for your attention.

* * *

VERY PALE GREEN satin in a chartreuse shade is used and the entire bodice, top of the peplum and deep skirt flounce are shirred in horizontal rows about an inch apart. A narrow belt of ribbon ties at the side.

TEETH are actually 3 Shades WHITER

NOW there's no excuse for stained teeth that are so dull and dingy they mar beauty and offend others. Proof lies in this new Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique.

Start using this new technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Then after 3 days note the improvement in the appearance of teeth and gums.

Teeth look cleaner and fully 3 shades whiter. Gums feel firmer and look healthier. The mouth tingles with a wonderful new taste sensation.

Kolynos is surprising—utterly unlikeanything you've ever used. As soon as it enters the mouth it becomes a refreshing, antiseptic FOAM that permits the Dry-Brush Technique which makes Kolynos just 10 times more effective.

Instantly this FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. It kills the millions of germs that sweep into the mouth with every breath, defy ordinary toothpaste and cause stain, discoloration, decay and most gum diseases, if neglected. Acids are neutralized, tartar is gently erased and the mouth is purified.

Thus this remarkable technique cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—right down to the beautiful, naked white enamel without injury.

Convince Yourself

If you want clean, attractive teeth and firm, coral-pink gums switch to the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. In 3 days you'll be convinced that anyone can have sparkling white teeth and healthy gums. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

A resolution declaring that the educational value of radio is endangered by excess advertising, propaganda and jazz, was presented for consideration by the Allied Boards of Trade by Prof. M. P. Damage claims by property owners, churches and business places involved are being heard by the board of viewers in cases where no settlement was reached.

MACMURDO-COLLINS MAY PLAY AGAIN

THE FOOTBALL OUTLOOK for next season at the University of Pittsburgh has been materially brightened by a promise that the varsity squad will have the services of two experienced players who were under a cloud on account of scholastic deficiencies. It is a good chance that Jim MacMurdo and Dan Collins, who were suspended just before the Penn State game on last Thanksgiving Day on account of scholastic deficiencies, will be back on Pantheon togs and eligible for the season of 1931.

Jim MacMurdo

MacMurdo and Collins have shown the right spirit since their suspension from college athletics. They will be eligible for another season of collegiate football if their are in good standing in the university at the time, and with the determination of earning reinstatement both have buckled down to work to make up their marks. According to reports they are making rapid progress and by the time another pigskin season arrives they are likely to have the scholastic ranking required for participation in sports.

IN THE PROMISED return of MacMurdo and Collins to the varsity squad the Panthers will gain as much additional football strength as is represented by the combined ability of those two capable players. For the two have been generally accepted as lost to the team and neither has entered into the plans of Coach Sutherland for the 1931 campaign. It shows Pitt will be stronger by the extent of two experienced players that has been figured.

The come-back of MacMurdo probably will mean a shift in position. Jim was moved to end from tackle last season, but if he is eligible again next fall it will not be surprising if he is sent back to tackle, paired with Jess Quatse, to fill the hole caused by the loss of Charley Tully, who will be among the spring graduates. With Capt. Eddie Hirshberg at one of the ends, Collins, if reinstated, will fight it out with Ted Daily and the rest of the candidates for the other terminal job.

The backfield material Duquesne has on hand these days is enough to give the Dukes nightmares. Here's Andy Durin, Davies backfield of Chick Davies, and Bill Daly, who's at the Buff and Blue.

The scoring record of the Dukes ought to become a cinch for basketball. Dunn is not only plays a crack game at his position when the Blue Devils are engaged in actual competition.

AUDLEY ALSO FINDS time to get in so much study that he ranked second in the recent pre-holiday chemistry examinations in the school of education. Besides, he never misses the regular afternoon practice under Frosh Coach Buff Donnelli and Brother Chick, and in addition after school hours he works in the Homestead steel mills. And on top of it all he is a married man. Capt. Brud Stephens, a senior in the school of education, also is married, making two additional Benedicts in Duke basketball besides the well-known Ganzy. Coach Chick Davies, brother of Audley, is still single. He is also a freshman in the school of education, and, incidentally, came out first in the chemistry examinations in which Audley took a second.

Audley Davies

ONE MAJOR LEAGUE baseball magnate sees a "how-to-business in the failure of the clubs to make more player trades. He is Phil Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns, who finds fault with the other moguls in his own league for not keeping pace with the club owner in the National League in the making of deals.

"We win all the world series but the National League makes all the money," complains Ball, in taking his fellow magnates to task because they won't swap players. He points out that star players are frequently traded in the Hexdler loop and accuses the American League owners of being afraid to take a chance.

BALL CONTENDS THAT trades tend to keep the clubs more evenly balanced and thus make for closer and better pennant races, and that a steady changing of faces in the various cities keeps the interest of the fans at fever heat.

He says the National League owes its exciting and profitable pennant scrambles to the fact that the magnates are willing to gamble on a player exchange and don't whine when they are wrested.

IN THE NATIONAL, Ball finds a club will take a chance in a trade with no other thought than it may be able to strengthen itself. But in the American the average mogul won't take such a chance because his first thought is to avoid strengthening the other fellow. The result of the difference in policy, according to the Brown owner, is that team strength in the National League is equalized, pennant races are tighter and there are fewer losing investments than in the American.

WHEN A REFEREE gives a decision at the end of a boxing bout that decision is supposed to be final and unalterable, but that doesn't go in France, it appears, if the crowd happens not to like it. In Paris recently Cuthbert Taylor, British bantam, was proclaimed the winner over Victor Pannoucke, a Frenchman, in a 12-round bout.

So evident were the protests of the crowd, however, that the referee decided it would be discreet to reconsider his verdict, and an hour later it was announced that the result was a draw. The explanation given was that a mistake had been made in summing up the points.

FRANK CARIDEO, a native Noble Kiser at Purdue will not be the only Notre Dame football star of 1930 coaching next season. Tom Conley, captain and end, will take charge of his alma mater at La Salle College in Philadelphia, football and basketball in particular.

The college conducted by De La Salle Christian Brothers was opened only last September and has not had a football team in 10 years. Conley took the post at the personal request of Bro. Eugene, who was picked to select a man for the place.

Johnny Grosso

THERE ARE SOME unscrupulous boxing managers who will urge a fighter in their care to keep on battling, perhaps at the risk of his life, when he has clearly run his course, just for the dollars it will mean to them. Billy Gibson, former manager of Gene Tunney and Benny Leonard, shows a refreshingly different trait. Since December 30, 1924, Gibson has been manager of Heavyweight Johnny Grosso. The latter has been going down hill and the climax came last week when he was knocked out by Ralph Ficurillo. Gibson has just returned his contract to Grosso and requested him to retire from the game.

Duquesne vs. Thiel at Greenville.

Allegheny vs. West Virginia at Morgantown.

Geneva College vs. Gettysburg at Gettysburg.

By JESS CARVER

C. O. Benson

The job that confronts the Dukes this evening, of trying to stop Thiel's attack, is one that has baffled many an opponent. It was only a few days ago that Geneva, which has a fine team this year, was supposed to have a comfortable time with the Tomcats. It was another of those vice-versa affairs.

Duquesne cleaned up the Tomcats series with the Lutherans last year although it was a close battle on both occasions. Thiel's new coach, B. O. Benson, former assistant instructor at Illinois has a mate of lettermen from his veteran team. This year led by Bible but the lefty Pfumpton, of center and a doubleheader guard in Harbin. Harter was the guard who put the ball game away against Geneva.

Duquesne, right now, has the same lineup behind Hart that played there with Wayne Burd Monday, which consists of Benedict and Abele at the forwards, Burk McGrew at center and Capt. Brud Stephens and Parry at the guards. The lineups:

Duquesne		Thiel
Benedict	f	Harter
Abele	f	Clarke
McGrew	c	Pumpton
Parry	g	C. McCoy
Stephens (C)	g	Bell

The Tipoff

A move of no small significance and one that apparently was hailed by most if not all observers, was made by the Eastern Association for the Selection of Football Officials, (the Olcson plan) at its annual meeting in New York.

With these 12 leading institutions in line, at about $1,000 per year each, the Central Board, which formerly had taken care of the assigning and furnishing of officials, figured it would be best to drop out of the running, especially as some of the other schools, including Carnegie Tech, Lafayette, Cornell, West Virginia, Holy Cross, New York University, Georgetown and others became associated members.

The formation of an Eastern Conference, long talked about is coming. The original dozen charter members of the present group will hardly do, for Yale, Harvard and Princeton are too hidebound in their ivy traditions to be suitable to such an organization. By substituting Carnegie Tech, New York University, and possibly Cornell, Lafayette or West Virginia, a league really worth-while and worthwhile as the Big Ten would result.

GENEVA ON ROAD TRIP

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Geneva basketball team left this morning for a short Eastern trip of three encounters. Tonight Coach Hughes' quintet will be at Gettysburg. Tomorrow they will be in Scranton to meet the St. Thomas quintet and then will move on to Washington against Catholic University on Saturday night.

WALKER AGAIN LOSES TITLE

Walker had been given until January 1 to sign for a title bout by the Pennsylvania Commission. The New York commission took similar actions recently.

The middleweight championship of six boxers, Nick Polo, Alabiappa, Pa.; Billy Bilbey, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Flunkie Portland and Paul Balint, of Pittsburgh, Joe Orsini, Clairton, Pa., and F. Brickner, Charleroi, were announced by the Commission. No reasons were given.

Girls' Team Beats David Passers

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—The female of the species long touted as being more deadly than the male, is due for a touch especially on the basketball court. The fact were definitely established here last night.

The crack Tri-for-Trips Girls' basketball team, a quintet of bobbed-haired lassies took over the House of David team three last from Benton Harbor with the promise of whiskey. They lost, but played, you bet they beat us 18 to 9.

Not content with bringing about the complete humiliation of their male opponents, the star center of the girls' team, Violet Kornbeck, rubbed salt into the wounded feelings of the males by knocking out the center of the latter's team, Jungy Clay Williams. In trapping for the ball, Little Miss Kornbeck socked the towering Williams over the chin with her pert boyish bob and cut out Williams' necessitating the calling of a physician.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: SUNSHINE GRAFTON GOES TO JAIL WHEN THE SUN DOESN'T SHINE.—James L. (Sunshine Jimmy) Grafton, of Fort Myers, Fla., made a promise several years ago to spend a day in jail for each 24-hour period the sun failed to shine in Fort Myers. On September 8, 1930, the sun did not shine and Grafton was called upon to serve his jail term. The official sunshine count on September 10, 1930, was 1446 days of sunshine out of 1448 days.

BOXERS WORK AT CARNEGIE

Fifty candidates for the first boxing team in the history of the school are being drilled daily by Coach Ernie Sesto at Carnegie Tech. The Pittsburgh Tartans' tutor has a fine squad, although skilled and to be lacking more or less and will send his teams against West Virginia at Morgantown on January 15 for its memorial match.

Among the candidates for positions are Johnny Dreshal, ring captain for the last two years, heavyweight; Hooks Sample, guard also a heavyweight; Alex Durante, end center in the 175-pound class; Scovell in the 160-pound class and Rosatane in the 175-pound class.

SPORT VIGNETTES

It pays to have something in reserve . . . Any winning athlete will attest to the truth of this statement . . . The sprinter saves his real burst of speed for the finish of the race . . . The football team that can keep up its drive to the finish or come from behind in the late stages of a grueling contest is the one that will show a winning record . . . Bill Tilden used to drop sets in tennis purposely to prolong matches and tire out his opponents and then sweep on to victory with a blazing flare of pent-up energy . . . Bobby Jones conquered the golfing world with his bulldog tenacity that broke the spirit of his foes . . . It works out in all lines.

And now we have still further proof of the pudding in the season records of the major leagues, which reveal that in winning their second consecutive American League pennant, leading up to world series triumphs each year, the Philadelphia Athletics last season won no less than 40 games with rallies in the late innings. . . . On the other hand, the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and other teams lost game after game after getting off in the lead. . . . It's the line of demarcation between a championship team and an also-ran. . . . The A's won 13 games with seventh-inning attacks, eight in the eighth inning, 13 in the ninth and six in extra innings. . . . And don't forget their great late splashes against the Cardinals in the world series that followed and their 10-run rally to defeat the Cubs the year before. . . . The old fight that carries on in the face of seeming defeat still wins the battles in every branch of sport and in all walks of life. . . . This may sound like a sermon, and it is. . . . It is the battle hymn of success, spelled out in large capital letters.

They're reeling 'em in movie pictures to prove that wrestling is nothing more or less than a lot of hokum, put over while the fans are worked up to a great emotional pitch and unable to perceive clearly what is taking place.

Movie were taken of the recent Jim Londos-Ferenc Holuban bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, which drew a $50,000 gate in the movie of less parlous time, and the slow motion views of the finish show Holuban applying three successive flying mares to his Greek opponent, tossing him heavily, and then passively permitting Londos to pick him up bodily and swing him about over his head for what is known as the airplane whirl and then throwing him to the mat and pouncing upon him for the fall. . . . It is obvious from the pictures that Holuban made little effort to avert his Waterloo, but it was spectacular stuff and the crowd, enjoying the show, noisily hailed the victor.

His once bad shoulder back in good shape again, as evidenced by his fine fielding and throwing last season, when his brilliant work as captain and shortstop of the Brooklyn Robins was the main factor in keeping that club up in the pennant race until the closing stages, Glenn Wright, former Pirate star, plans to be one of the first to report at the Clearwater training camp this spring to get his legs in good shape for a hard campaign by playing golf and taking long walks as part of his training grind . . . He was bothered somewhat by a weak ankle in the late days of the 1930 season. . . . Glenn flashed a great comeback last year, batting at a .321 clip, hitting 22 home runs and driving in 126 tallies.—HARRY KECK.

THREE ARE TIED FOR MEDAL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Golf's balloon ball was given the ram test yesterday by more than 300 players, three of whom led the field with cards of 146 in the qualifying round for the Los Angeles $10,000 open tournament.

Two professionals, Willie Coggin, San Francisco, and Ben Colton, Oakland, Cal., and Danny Sagster, Los Angeles amateur were three-deadlocked.

Harry Westbrook, Pasadena (Cal.) amateur, holed his tee shot on a 235-yard drive, while Harold Sampson, Burlingame, Cal., professional got a hole-in-one on a 172-yard drive.

Tied for second place were Eddie Loos, of Chicago, and W. H. Cox, of Brooklyn, at 147.

RYERSON LEADER

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., one-putted his way across five greens to par 72 for medal honors in the Miami mid-winter amateur yesterday. Jimmy West, Miami, defending champion, scored a 77 for qualifying play in a surprisingly small field of contestants.

Crawford Asks For Voluntary Retirement

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 8.—(AP)—When Pat Crawford, infielder with the New York Giants, and later the Cincinnati Reds in 1930, registered for a course of study at Springfield College last Monday, he turned his back on professional baseball for a time at least.

Crawford, convinced that another pursuit is better than minor league ball, has returned to Springfield College to study for his bachelor's degree in physical education. He has, at the same time, petitioned Commissioner K. M. Landis that he be placed on the voluntarily retired list of the Hollywood Missions, Pacific Coast League aggregation to which he was traded by the Reds for Mickey Heath.

SILENCE MARKS HEAVYWEIGHT SITUATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A shroud of silence enveloped the great heavyweight muddle today while all concerned awaited the arrival of W. L. (Young) Stribling and his manager P. A. Stribling, the key men in the question of who will fight whom for what championship. The Striblings are due this evening to set the conferences started all over.

STRIB SURE OF GO

No matter who may fight or where next summer's championship battle may take place, it seems certain that Stribling will be one of the men in the ring. With Schmeling barred in New York, the Madison Square Garden management began to move yesterday in the direction indicated by the State Athletic Commission toward a battle between Stribling and Jack Sharkey, the winner to be recognized as heavyweight champion. At the same time Nate Lewis, Chicago stadium matchmaker, went about his preparations for signing the Georgian to meet Schmeling in Chicago.

Lewis, Sidney Stratz, president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, wound up a long conference and departed without making an announcement, but it was presumed that they had been attempting to find their way out of two tangles that may interfere with the proposed Chicago bout. One concerned the poll the National Boxing Association is now conducting as to whether the heavyweight title shall be declared vacant.

CONTRACT TO BE OVERCOME

The other involved the contract the Madison Square Garden Corporation now holds, calling for Schmeling to defend his title first in New York under the Garden direction. Jacobs holds that the commission's action in depriving Schmeling of title recognition voided the contract.

Bill Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, had two plans under consideration. He said that Sharkey was ready to sign for a battle with Stribling, but he also was in communication by telephone with George Getz, wealthy Chicago sportsman, concerning the possibility of staging a Schmeling-Stribling bout in Chicago to the exclusion of the Stadium Corporation.

MAX INDIGNANT

GARMISCH Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 8.—"I want to fight in Chicago because I know I will get a fair deal there."

So said Max Schmeling when interviewed here yesterday.

Max pointed out that the Illinois boxing commission was backed by more states than New York and he declared that both himself and Young Stribling no longer had any confidence in the New York boxing commission.

He is highly indignant at the charges that have been made, even by the responsible German papers, that he is trying to sidestep Sharkey.

"It is a shameless lie," he angrily declared. "I have repeatedly said that I am ready to defend my title with whoever was put in the ring against me."

He is now waiting for a cable from America, when he will immediately sail for his tour through the United States.

SCHOOL CARD MOVED UP

City League senior and junior basketball games scheduled for Friday, have been moved up to this afternoon, C. Lawrence Walsh, director of city high school athletics, has announced. The change was caused to permit instructors to attend a special teachers' meeting tomorrow in the Schenley High School auditorium.

Three games are slated for both sections of the league. In Section I, Peabody and South clash in a game that may have an important bearing on the outcome of the first half race. This game will be played on South's floor. Fifth Avenue, defeated in its initial start Tuesday, meets Connelley at Connelley, and Allerdice tackles Schenley, favored to win both the section and league title on the Bellefielders' court.

New Boxing Rules Asked for N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 8.—New rules governing the conduct of boxing bouts were recommended to the New York State Legislature in the annual report of Edward J. Flynn, secretary of state, submitted yesterday.

Among other things Flynn suggested that gymnasiums used as training sites of boxers, which charged admission fees to watch practices be subject to tax.

SOCCER ASSOCIATION, REFEREES AT ODDS

Jackets Show Fight in Win Over London to Move to Fifth Place

U. S. F. A. EAGER TO CLEAR UP MUDDLE

By TOM BIRKS.

A wide open fight which threatens to finish on the convention floor of the United States Football Association in Chicago in June, is raging in the East between officials of the United States Soccer Referees' Union, and a special committee consisting of Morris Johnson, of Philadelphia, Col. Manning, of New York, and Dave McDonald, of New Jersey, appointed by President Armstrong Patterson to clear up the trouble of those referees entangled in the outlaw leagues.

ACTION THREATENED

The committee, which recently made its report, did not mince words, and President E. J. Gilgane and Secretary W. Welsh, of the referees' body, are up in arms. Legal action has been threatened, and, while this may be avoided, the battle on the convention floor is expected to be a bitter one.

Many soccer men have been looking for this since the Atlantic City convention last June. At that time the big outlaw professional league had returned to organized soccer and the question of what was to be done about referees was up in the air.

It appears the committee asked for all correspondence in the matter—and it was not forthcoming, having mysteriously disappeared. It is around the missing letters the committee has based its decision.

RAFFIES ELIMINATED

The Raffies, who appeared here last year in the final of the National amateur cup, opposing Gallatin and playing a 3-3 tie being subsequently named champions when Gallatin refused to travel to Fall River, were dumped out of this year's tourney on Sunday by the Victoria Mills team, losing 4 to 0, on a muddy field.

Soccer Notes

Manager Howard Mangus, of Morgan has announced the game with Donley Sunday in the Keystone League will be played at Morgan, beginning at 3 p. m.

A meeting of the keystone League will be held in the office of President Philip Hillen this evening at 7:30. All clubs have been asked to be represented.

Next Tuesday evening the Panhandle loop will convene at Squire Smith's in Bradley. All clubs are expected to be represented.

A deciding game in the Central League will be played Saturday afternoon when the Pierpont Motors stack up with Clan Douglas at Westinghouse High School field. If the Moremen defeat Douglas, the league race will remain wide open.

CARNERA SAILS FOR U. S.

HAVRE, France, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, sailed yesterday for his second invasion of the United States. He returned to Europe to fight Paulino Uzcudon in Spain after suffering suspensions in several states during his highly ballyhooed first visit.

ROWING BODY TO MEET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (INS.)—The annual meeting of the members of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association has been set for January 22 in New York, it was announced today. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss plans for this year's Poughkeepsie regatta, which will be held in June.

PARRY ABELE IRWIN CAPT. STEPHENS BENEDICT MCGEEVER

Working with a squad boasting only five letter men, Coach Chick Davies, of Duquesne University, is confronted with a difficult basketball schedule. To date, the Dukes have defeated Lehigh, St. Mary's College, of Michigan, and Waynesburg, and have 17 games ahead of them. Capt. Brud Stephens, Abele, Parry, Benedict and McGeever are veterans and letter men. The Dukes play Thiel at Greenville, Pa., tonight and are primed for a stubborn battle.

COLLINS FACES HARD TASK

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

A fightin' guy with a smile may lead the Boston Red Sox out of the wilderness; when Owner Bobby Quinn landed John (Shauno) Collins for the Red Sox managerial job, the action was acclaimed throughout New England.

Shauno Collins

Shauno Collins, in his long career as a major league outfielder, was a "ball player's player." A sweet performer in the garden, Collins missed being a 300 hitter—when that figure denoted stardom—but his team-play faculties and aggressiveness, coupled with his brilliant defense skill and speed, made him a standout in the viewpoint of his diamond contemporaries. He had many of the Ross Young attributes.

LAUDED AT BANQUET

Collins has had considerable experience as a pilot. He was in charge of teams in Des Moines, Ia., and Pittsfield, Mass. The fact that he was selected over a host of diamond celebrities is is good proof that Owner Quinn has plenty of confidence in his new leader.

A testimonial banquet, described as the biggest tribute ever given a baseball player in Pittsfield, was given Collins the other night by the Holy Name Society of Pittsfield. Quinn and other big men of the game paid Shauno unusual compliments at the event.

FACES BIG TASK

At Boston, Collins will encounter much of the same big handicaps that confront Burt Shotton in Philadelphia. Indeed, it seems that he has less with which to work than Shotton. Anyhow, the task is big enough to tax the resourcefulness of a Mack or McGraw, but Shauno has the advantage of spirit on his side.

The new leader is a big rugged fellow who bubbles over with good nature, but when crossed he can show a front full of contrasting emotions. Shauno was among the White Sox performers of 1919, whom the gamblers were afraid to approach. He is the sort that would start something exciting were anything of a dishonest nature broached to him.

Chillysauce

The Red Sox are the first of the major league teams to furnish the press with the annual letters containing personal information, which have become the vogue in baseball.

Quinn and Collins appear to be on the right track concerning the uplift of the Bowls team. The new pilot will take no less than 38 players to Pensacola camp—many of the boys being rookies.

Pittsburgh is represented in the Boston family by Bill Regan, crack second baseman who has tended the keystone sack for many seasons. There's a valuable performer for any man's club.

Announcement that John K. Tener, of Charleroi, has been elected to the directorate of the Phillies was received with keen pleasure by the many friends of the former Governor of the Keystone State.

Governor Tener has had an eventful life but his baseball memories are among the most treasured of his career. He was a star pitcher for the old Chicago White Stockings when Pop Anson was in his heyday.

Pro Implicates Self in Murder 'For Publicity'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A 19-year-old golf instructor, reported in messages to Washington and Philadelphia authorities to have knowledge of the killing of Beulah Limerick in Washington, told police yesterday he had sent the telegrams himself to get publicity.

The youth, known as Ted Martin, but whose real name is Isadore Matin, told Capt. Heanley, of the murder squad, he conceived the idea of reporting himself as being connected with the killing, because he needed publicity to increase his golf instruction classes.

Police said they would not hold Matin as he apparently did not realize the seriousness of his actions.

JACKETS BEAT PENN STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—After appearing hopelessly outclassed in the first half, Waynesburg's Yellow Jacket quintet rallied in the second half, to defeat Penn State, 31 to 24, in a fast tilt here last night.

The first half found the Jackets trailing, 14 to 5, mainly through some atrocious shooting, missing at least 20 attempts at the baskets, while the Mt. Nittany quint, with Hammond leading the way, looked the part of easy winners.

JACKETS BEAT THREE BOXING CARDS BILLED

Sports Editor.

The first of these is Jim McGirr's double windup offering at McKeesport, with Frank Novak of the North Side, meeting Chet Johnson, Olean (N. Y.) heavyweight, and Billy Brent, Hill Negro, opposing Johnny Kerr, Scotch middleweight, from New York, in the feature battles, and Charley Crovatta, of Uniontown, making his first start as a professional against Eddie Litz, of Warren, Pa., in the second bout, and Georgie Sotak, of Irwin, opposing Tony Marino, of McKeesport, in the opener.

At the Moose Temple, downtown, tomorrow night, Frankie Chatterton, of Cleveland, boxes Eddie Brannon, hard-hitting Negro lightweight, of the Hill, in the main bout, with U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Billy (Muscle) Scholes, of the North Side, clashing for the third time in the semi-final, and Marcus Noll, Negro southpaw middleweight, of the Hill, meeting Red Miller, of Cleveland, and Terry Waner, of the North Side, battling Sammy Burns, Negro, of the Hill, in the opener.

The Motor Square Garden card for Monday night has been completed with Johnny Indrisano, of Boston, and Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main bout; Billy Holt, of Homewood, and Larry Madge, of Cleveland, in the eight-round semi-final; Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Allen Beatty, of McKeesport, in the second bout, and Gus Britner, of Charleroi, and Jimmy Riley, of McKeesport, in the opener.

Between Rounds

K. O. Christner, veteran heavyweight, of Akron, boxes Eud Doran at Peoria, Ill., tonight. Bill Jones, Negro light-heavyweight, engages George Nichols, of Canton, in an eight-rounder in Philadelphia, where he also boxes Yale Okun next Monday night in the semi-final to a Mickey Walker-Matt Adgie bout.

James (Red) Mason, dean of local managers still is in Chicago where he is helping King Levinsky to get ready for his return bout with Jimmy Slattery and also handling Jackie Fields, along with Jack Kearns and Ray Arcel.

The all-star show at St. Louis last Friday night headed by the Eddie Shea-Andy Martin tilt drew about $15,000, but was a flop, and reports have it that most of the boxers on the card had to take a cut in their purses to enable the promoter to make ends meet.

Sam Lampe, of Baltimore, wants to show his son, Sol Lampe, featherweight, and Charley Cobb, the heavyweight, here. Both have fine records. Promoters may reach Lampe in care of Kernan's Hotel, Baltimore.

Joe Dubranski, of McKeesport, is the new manager of Johnny Russe, of Canton, O., a middleweight, who now makes his home in the Tube City. Russe has been boxing several years and has turned in some good wins in Ohio rings.

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Penn Five, of Sharpsburg defending champion in the West Penn League, will make a determined effort to get back in the running for the first-half championship tonight when it engages the league-leading Ray Schneiders at North Side Moose Hall.

The North Siders have been playing brilliant basketball all season, and at present are showing the way to all rivals in the West Penn circuit. A victory over the Penn Five will clinch the laurels for Joe Goetz's charges. In the other West Penn League game tonight the Knickers are the attraction of the North Side Buicks at St. Joseph's Lyceum.

Revenge will be the objective of the Fintex team, first half champion of the Allegheny County League tonight when it opposes the Y. M. H. A. in the second of a three-game series. The Y. M. H. A. copped the first decision with points to spare.

VANITIES PLAY KIRWIN

The Goldenson Vanities, boasting a string of 30 straight victories during the last two years, inaugurated a new program at Washington Park when they meet the Kirwin girls in a demonstration contest. This series, which will be played at various city playgrounds, has been arranged with the co-operation of the board of recreation. This series should have a tendency to create new interest in girls' basketball activities.

The Butler Paulists hope to avenge an early season defeat at the expense of the Youngstown Y College at Butler tonight. The Ohioans handed Armand Cingolani's passers an unexpected defeat in their first meeting.

CHARLEROI BEATEN

The first half of the Allegheny County League closed last night, Ellwood City handing Charleroi a 39-34 setback at Ellwood City. The Schneiders nosed out the W. U. Hoyles, 25-24; St. Michael's lost to Community House, 37-34, and South Side Falcons beat North Side Bucks, 34-28, in West Penn League affrays.

Homewood Y won from North Boroughs Y, 32-26, in the Wagner Institutional League, and Trinity Cathedral Royals came from behind in the last minute of play to nose out Mt. Troy Presbyterian, 33-32, in the Pittsburgh Senior Church League. Regis Price, for the Royals, netted nine field goals.

Shots and Passes

The Y. M. H. A. Varsity B quintet meets the Allegheny Silents in the preliminary to the Y. M. H. A.-Fintex game at the Y. M. H. A. tonight.

Glassport has withdrawn from the Allegheny County League for the second half of the season.

Mingo Junction, O., has booked the Y. M. H. A. quintet for a charity game in the Ohio city next Tuesday night.

The Goldenson Vanities have made tentative arrangements to meet the former members of the Y. W. H. A. team on Tuesday, January 20. The game will be played on a neutral floor. Sylbia Silberman and Bee Tolchko are reorganizing the Y girls, who will play under the name of the Madcaps.

The difficulties of the West Penn League were ironed out at a special meeting last night and as a result Penn Five will retain its franchise. The champions threatened to withdraw because one of its victories was wiped out. This decision was reversed by the league officials yesterday.

White Sox Send Pair to Atlanta

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Chicago White Sox pruning season has opened.

Secretary Harry Grabiner has announced the transfer of Emil (Red) Barnes, outfielder, obtained from Washington last summer, and Lowell Douglass, recruit right handed pitcher, to the Atlanta Club, of the Southern Association, to complete the deal for Shortstop Luke Appling.

Grabiner said no "excess baggage" would be carried on the training trip and that Manager Donie Bush would weed out several more youngsters before the squad leaves for San Antonio, Tex.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Yellow Jackets of Pittsburgh advanced to fifth position in the International Hockey League as result of their 2-to-0 victory over the London Tecumsehs here last night. The Londoners fell back into sixth position. The Steel City sextet showed little strain after playing two games on consecutive nights.

The teams clash again in Pittsburgh Saturday night.

Lloyd McIntyre scored the first goal after five minutes in the second period when his shot slid through Goalie Stuart's skates. Milt Halliday increased the lead after seven minutes in the third period when he went through the London defense unmolested and scored with ease.

While the Londoners had many opportunities they failed to tally and lacked scoring punch. Halliday, McIntyre and Rodden were the outstanding forwards for the winners, while Berlet and Fraser played a great game on defense. It was a comparatively clean game, with only five penalties being imposed, while in the third period not a single player was chased. The lineup:

Fraser	G Stuart
Berlet	D Loughlin
Rodden	D Holway
McIntyre	C Pettinger
Halliday	RW Groh
Fisher	LW Quennerville

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Turn Up — Local List Turns Dull

PACT ON SUGAR GIVES STOCKS STRENGTH

Market Decline Halted On News of Agreement To Restrict Production

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The stock market was sweetened a little by the sugar issues today, just as it seemed to be turning sour.

The list was inclined to sag during the early trading, but pivotal issues were well supported, and news of an agreement with Central European producers to restrict production brought a sharp upturn shortly after the close, especially in this group.

The strength of the gold and silver shares seemed to be in response to gossip over plans to solve foreign monetary problems. There has been talk of stabilizing silver by a large silver loan to China. The price of gold has been creeping higher for months, with the large take taken by the Bank of France and Alaska Juneau being a member of the so-called "gold and dog" group of stocks to recently been put on a dividend basis. Price movements in the ferrous metals generally however were mixed. Lead prices were cut by American Smelting and while copper has recently been sold at 10¼ cents a cut of ¼ of a cent from the producers price. Copper futures at London, however, held steady.

The market as a whole, however, appeared to lack leadership. Public buying has been almost entirely confined to the bond market this week, and after the sustained advance in stocks starting late in December, professional traders felt that a substantial technical correction might be in order. Professional operations for the advance was mostly in second-rate stocks. Bears however proceeded cautiously in view of the steady tone maintained by pivotal industrials such as U. S. Steel.

Further strength of steel prices with a 50-cent a ton advance at Youngstown was regarded to steel trade circles a encouraging. News from the petroleum industry however was less pleasing, including gasoline price cutting in Ohio and reports that some groups of crude producers were seeking to have their proration schedules increased.

Money continued to be virtually a drug on the market, with call loans officially at 1½ per cent, but abundantly offered outside at 1 per cent.

BRITAIN BEST U. S. CUSTOMER

Total exports to all divisions of the world were $289,021,017 in November against $442,253,955 in November, 1929. Imports were $203,713,129 in November against $338,472,023 in November, 1929.

American exports to Great Britain were $61,093,806 in November, 1930, against $84,770,350 the same month of the preceding year, and imports were $15,289,280 against $24,082,672. For Canada exports were $41,689,174 against $68,017,183; imports $30,279,162 against $24,455,621.

Exports to Germany were $23,686,014 against $41,468,695; imports $11,166,429 against $18,923,911. Exports to France $22,093,922 against $26,723,972; imports, $8,226,601 against $13,523,824.

Exports to Soviet Russia totaled $6,972,377 against $9,650,848; imports, $1,438,765 against $2,047,929.

Rediscount Rate Cut at St. Louis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Federal Reserve Board announced that the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis has lowered its rediscount rate from 3½ per cent to 3 per cent, effective today.

The action of the St. Louis bank followed that of New York which reduced its rate to 2 per cent, Boston, where the rate was lowered to 2½ per cent, and Cleveland, where it was lowered to 3 per cent. In the remaining Federal Reserve banks a 3½ per cent rate is maintained.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Grains went downward early today influenced by favorable weather over the corn belt and by relative weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool. Official warnings of a possible big carry over of wheat in Canada acted also as bear factors. Opening ⅛@⅜c off from late underfoot turmoil set a bear. Wheat started ⅛@⅜c lower and afterward showed an additional sag.

Auto Leaders Are Reviving Old Time Dash

By B. C. FORBES

AUTOMOBILE LEADERS most of whom were also in the funk last year are now showing some of the old-time confidence and dash and daring.

Public interest in the New York automobile show has never been greater.

Mr. Forbes.

I have rarely seen so many enthusiastic automobile dealers as were present on the first day when the new models were unveiled. President A. B. Erskine made a hit when he observed that Studebaker has never been paid the greatest compliments in its whole 79 years' history. He said:

"Henry Ford, whom I regard as the greatest manufacturer in the world, has taken a leaf out of Studebaker's book and adopted free-wheeling in the Lincoln, which is the apple of Mr. Ford's eye."

At the Franklin dealers' luncheon it was announced that 51 of the 100 dealers leading the list had actually sold more cars in 1930 than in 1929. The dealer who won the blue ribbon told how he started in at last year's show button-holing prospects and that he there and then hooked some $50,000 worth of business.

One of the treats of the annual automobile show is to see Dick Grant, General Motors' super-salesman in action. When he warms up he suggests to the mind a piece of radium such is the verve and spirit and spark which emanate from him and radiate in all directions. His exhortations are effective because every listener knows that Grant has superlatively successfully practiced what he preaches. He asks of others nothing he himself has not achieved a hundredfold. Incidentally, the new, squarer, more considerate treatment automobile dealers now receive was inspired in no small measure by Grant. He has gumption enough to foresee that crowding dealers with unsold cars had been carried too far and that more harmonious teamwork between the maker and the seller would effect more profitable results all around.

In my humble opinion the auto industry is underestimating rather than overestimating its 1931 prospects. The industry may have to continue in low gear for a little while longer, but it should gain momentum and finish the year at creditable speed.

Only, the mortality among smaller and weaker companies is likely to be high. Several are hanging on by their eyebrows. One of the smaller companies, however, headed by practical men of noted integrity and ability, promises to stage quite a comeback.

Among my friends and acquaintances there has been much giving-up of luxuries and non-essentials since the 1929 panic, but not one of them has given up owning and using an automobile. Few new cars have been purchased and spare tires have been used up. But this means redoubled demand for cars and tires in the near future.

THIS COLUMN recently discussed the importance of reducing retail prices wherever feasible. It was stated that, whereas wholesale prices for almost every raw material and commodity had declined sharply, housewives were complaining that many retail prices had not been reduced.

George K. Gartman, first vice president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's Central Western Division, calls these complaints not properly founded. Grocery prices have been drastically reduced, he declares, and particularly mentions reductions made in the price of bread and coffee. To back up his statement, he furnishes these price comparisons as toward the end of December:

What do housewives have to say in face of this showing?

WALL STREET so far has been having a happy new year, thus—for once—showing the rest of the country a helpful example.

Beehive Coke Output At New Low Record

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—A new low record for beehive coke production in the Connellsville region, known as the world's greatest source of metallurgical fuel, was established in 1930, according to figures compiled by the Courier. The annual summary shows production for the past year as 1,257,850 tons, the smallest output since statistics were first kept in 1880.

The 1930 production compares with 2,205,946 tons in 1880, or 948,096 less. Comparison with the 1929 production of 3,980,760 tons shows a loss of 2,722,910 tons.

Electricity Yield Lower for Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Production of electricity in the United States for the week ended January 2 was 1,524,253,000 kilowatt hours against 1,659,380,000 in the preceding week. The decline says the National Electric Light Association, was due to the fact that many trades close for inventory purposes between Christmas and New Year.

Firestone's New Plant Ready By May

AKRON, Jan. 8.—The new tire plant of Firestone Tire and Rubber Company in the Argentine will be in operation by May 1, 1931. The plant, which will be located at Eliavallof, just outside of Buenos Aires, will be capable of producing 1,000 tires and tubes daily. It will be operated by a Firestone subsidiary, Firestone De La Argentine S. A., of which Harvey Firestone Schectman of the board, Harvey Firestone, Jr., president, and Samuel Bloets, vice president.

Stock Exchange Topics

Investors Seeking Fixed Income Attracted by Bond Market

Investors are being attracted into the bond market again. Part of the buying recently has been from those who shared heavily in the January 1 interest and dividend distribution. Those investors seek fixed income securities and are inclined to give bonds preference in making commitments. Some of the buying has been coming into preferred stocks which have a high rating among investments. A number of these senior stocks have been selling at levels which have been attractive for yield and safety. Several houses have been making recommendations in that group to customers seeking suggestions. To a smaller degree buying with funds received in the January 1 disbursements has been coming into common stocks.

One of the wealthiest men in the country told a friend recently that his fortune had shrunk to one-third of what it was at peak prices last year. "But," he said, "I am not discouraged in the least. Over the last quarter of a century, my fortune has shrunk very badly on five different occasions, but I know this shrinkage is temporary. After every sinking spell, what I own always soars to a new high."

Those opposing the stock market recovery in recent sessions have maintained that many business adjustments still must be completed. That is admitted by economists and students. It is pointed out, however, that in no business depression have necessary adjustments been completed before a recovery began. Usually a better feeling develops in the stock market when the bulk of the major adjustments has been made. Those incompleted merely cause periods of irregularity. Bulls are hoping that precedent will be followed this year.

William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry Company and chairman of American Locomotive Company, makes the following statement with regard to the railroad consolidation program: "I believe it to be the biggest bull news promulgated in a long time for railroad equipment companies, and all labor connected therewith. I certainly hope that it will be put through speedily, as it will go a long way toward helping to end the business depression through which we are now passing."

Back in 1906, the United States Steel Corporation had only 14,723 common shareholders, compared with 141,907 at the close of 1930. That is a gain of approximately 865 per cent, and gives one an idea of how the wealth of the country and its people has grown over the last quarter of a century. Comparatively few people owned either stocks or bonds a quarter of a century ago, when lower wages did not permit indulgence of that kind.

Many believe the tendency of commodity prices for the first six months of the current year will be upward. Fisher's index showed an average of 78.5 for the week ended January 1, the lowest in a number of years and only 11.2 above the low level reached in December, 1914. Based on increased cost of production since 1914, largely on account of increased wages, some figure that the margin of profit between cost of production and selling price is even narrower than in 1914.

Commodity Prices Drop in December

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Commodity prices, as measured by Bradstreet's index, declined 3.3 per cent in December, the fifteenth consecutive monthly reduction from October 1, 1929. Compared with January 1, 1930, a decrease of 18.6 per cent was shown, while compared with the peak point of 1929, touched on March 1, the decrease was 26 per cent. Of 13 groups of commodities, decreases were shown in December in all but two, moderate gains being shown in fruits and naval stores.

N. Y. Banks Offer 'Big Four' Bonds

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—An offering of an additional $50,000,000 refunding and improvement mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company was made by J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, the National City Company, and the Guaranty Company of New York.

Investment Companies Cut Capital

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

ADJUSTMENTS IN CAPITAL structures are being planned by many investment trusts of the management type in order to make it possible to continue the payment of dividends to stockholders.

In many cases the declines in the market value of holdings have entirely wiped out surplus accounts. Under the corporate laws of most states, it would be illegal to pay dividends in excess of surplus. Some of the investment companies have found that, while their book value is depleted, they have had income from dividends and interest on securities held which warrants the payment of dividends on their own stock. To do this, however, it is necessary to reduce the capital to a point which will leave a balance sheet surplus.

Own Stock Purchased

DURING THE PAST year the stocks of most management trusts have been selling below their liquidating value. The managements of many of these companies decided that this made the purchase of their own stock a desirable step. This had the effect of increasing the equity of the remaining shares. While the New York Stock Exchange several months ago questioned the desirability of this practice, it is difficult to find fault with it during such abnormal market conditions as those at present unless the purchases are made with the intent of influencing the market value.

The annual reports of several investment trusts have shown that the practice of these companies purchasing their own stock has been quite widespread and, in most cases, has been beneficial for the remaining stockholders.

Capital Reduced

IN EFFORTS TO IMPROVE the appearance of their statements, two investment companies have been among those to announce plans for capital changes.

The Vick Financial Corporation states that stockholders will be asked at their meeting on January 27 to approve a reduction in the par value of the common stock from $10 to $5 a share and the retirement of 50,095 shares purchased at an average cost of $6.78 a share. They will also be asked to authorize the further purchase for retirement of 100,000 shares of additional stock at prices not in excess of $6 a share.

The amount sliced off the capital will be used to establish a reserve for depreciation in the market value of securities. The management of this company has announced its intention of operating as an investment organization in the future and not as a blind pool. The president stated yesterday that dividends will not be paid out of profits on the sale of securities. Any such profits will be credited to the reserve fund until the liquidating value of the common stock has been restored to the original paid in amount of $10 a share. The present net asset value is $7.38 a share on 1,216,995 shares. For the year this company earned net income of $427,894, or 35 cents a share.

Sisto Cuts Again

THE SISTO FINANCIAL CORPORATION has announced plans for a second reduction in its capital. In February, 1930, the stated value of shares was reduced from $50 to $25. On January 22 the stockholders will be asked to approve a further reduction to $1 a share. The management expressed the opinion that this last reduction, creating a surplus of $1,318,136, will be fool proof. The stated value of the 69,900 outstanding shares at the close of 1930 was $19.87 a share. This corporation purchased 30,100 shares of its own stock last year—nearly one-third of the capitalization.

Bancokentucky Off Chicago Exchange

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Bancokentucky Shares, investment concern which is in receivership, were dropped from the Chicago Stock Exchange list by action of the board of governors. No explanatory statement accompanied the announcement. The high mark of the stock during the last year was 25. There were 4,000,000 shares of no par Bancokentucky common stock listed.

Central Loadings Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—New York Central Lines in the week ended January 3 loaded 42,237 cars of revenue freight, comparing with 37,170 cars in the week preceding, 34,057 for the like 1930 week and 55,205 in the similar 1929 period.

Ford's 1930 World Production Down

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—World production of Ford cars and trucks during 1930 totaled 1,500,000 units, of which 45,032 were produced in December. This compares with 1,948,429 units in 1929.

While Ford production in the United States and Canada declined, the company showed a larger proportion of the total for the industry than in 1929. Its share last year was about 42 per cent, whereas, in 1929 35 per cent were Fords.

NEW YORK BANK LAW CHANGES PROPOSED

Amendment Would Give Superintendent Power to Remove Lax Officials

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—New York State sets the fashion for the entire country in banking legislation. Accordingly, the new recommendations of Joseph A. Broderick, state superintendent of banks here, are of nation-wide significance.

Mr. Broderick, who returned to public office last year, when it became apparent that the banking department needed rehabilitation, wisely attempts to convert the existing public emotional interest in banking into constructive channels.

Mr. Rukeyser.

One of his most important proposals is to permit the superintendent to remove from office officers and directors of banking institutions who have been guilty of persistent violations of the banking law, or of a continuance of unsafe and unsound practices.

In order to avert future bank suspensions, Mr. Broderick asks the Legislature to permit prompt mergers of banking institutions in case of emergency by providing that with the approval of the superintendent, the boards of directors may vote for such consolidations, without waiting to submit the proposition to stockholders.

Mr. Broderick proposes a variety of other sensible amendments to the banking law, which, if adopted, will make a New York state charter a badge of strength.

CONSTRUCTION URGED

W. J. Austin, president of the Austin Company, at Cleveland, important factor in the construction industry, in a message to this column, urged bankers to take a broad view of the economic advantages of necessary construction at this time. He said:

"We would like it if bankers would be more ready to grant industrial loans for sound enterprises, and would not do as one of our recent clients reported when he went for a loan for a much-needed addition, to request that he should not put any money into brick or mortar or he would lose his existing line of credit. We believe that lower costs of manufactured goods is possible through the use of new and improved plants and machinery, with the resulting increase in volume of manufacture, and that boards of directors can well take advantage of new conditions and new low prices as a means to the enlargement of their business."

The wise managers are using the present lull to prepare for the next period of economic revival.

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a product of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert. When Jim visits he takes an interest in Kitty. Connie believing Jim a philanderer, is concerned for Kitty. Kitty admits that she likes Jim, but is afraid that he does not like her. Connie warns her of his selfishness. Connie's distrust of Jim causes her to seek Garson's aid. Duke does not agree with Connie's views. He admits that he is more interested in her than in Kitty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

Connie caught her breath, caught herself up sharply. The invitation to Duke Garson, flirtatious in its implication, had sprung spontaneously from her lips. Now, a second later, she was confused, embarrassed at her own boldness.

"I'm scarcely interested at all in Kitty and Mr. Tracy," Duke Garson told her unemotionally. "If I stay over it will be only because it's a chance to visit you. Let's not make any mistake over that."

A deep uneasiness possessed Connie—a foreboding that she had let herself in for an experience that might not prove pleasant. Even yet there was time discreetly to turn back, a few words well chosen would send Garson away. In keeping him she had an odd feeling of playing with danger, a sharp sense of awakened, alert vitality.

Garson Stays

"We keep open house here and, of course, you must stay now that you are here whatever your reasons may be," she smiled at him. "But don't make any mistake about me. I'm afraid you'll find me as uninteresting as a drink of water. Kitty is the only firebrand on the place."

Garson's bag was taken up to his room and he followed the servant to settle himself. The advent of a strange guest in the house was no novelty to Connie's mother; often, she had said, she felt as though she lived in a hotel with so many comings and goings of young people.

"I suppose I should come down for dinner, dear," she told Connie, "for hospitality's sake. But don't expect me to entertain your guests; they would be bored, and so would I. When your new friend is told as I am, Connie, you'll be glad enough to give up the pack and come yourself. Lots of you have but two other friends worth keeping."

Mrs. Calvert smiled, her expression had been secure with refined experience. This made Connie uncomfortable; other mothers tried to rule the home with an iron hand but her own had a deeper wisdom, putting her hand, Connie left to go down.

Kitty and Jim would be home presently, but now her interest in them had been dimmed by Several Genre. What occupied her was the consciousness of Duke Garson, presence under her roof, a lingering awareness of him, excited hauntingly, an inescapable impression not to be denied. He was tragedy exciting a threat somehow to all that was solidly established in her being. She knew safety in the stars but not of them, except Duke Garson could inspire the faintest thrill of provocative fear. He was, she was convinced, what would be called a bad man and his thought had a thin edge of pleasure for her.

Pair Absent

Minutes sped lengthened and an intuition came to Connie that Kitty and Jim would be absent from the table. This time, however, she was not amazed. She wondered with a little amusement what their story would be; they would have to think of something better than a punctured tire. It didn't matter with her mother coming down to dinner she would get along very nicely with Duke Garson until eventually Kitty and Jim should return. Her instinct about their absence was right; at 6 o'clock the telephone rang. The development was that they intended staying in Stamford for dinner and seeing a movie, the first show.

"They are courting in haste and probably will marry in leisure," she told Garson, who had come down stairs freshly shaven and immaculate. "Jim is courting fast."

"Why not?" Garson replied, smiling.

Connie shrugged. After all, why not? Without admitting secretly she had been in the wrong about them Connie felt a tension loosen. Her interest wavered sharply and centered on Garson.

"Dinner is at 7; we have almost an hour yet," she told him. "Shall we walk outside?"

They followed the path along a low stone wall that carried them down a terraced lawn, velvety and green under a cloudy sky. A turn brought them at further distance to an enclosed garden, its surface as smooth as a billiard table. In the center they stopped and sat on the rim of a sunken lily pool where elaborate Japanese fish moved lazy, ornamental fins. The earth, the shrubs, the flowers, released a fragrance that held almost an aching sweetness. All of this quiet beauty carefully shielded from the world's hubbub made no visible impression upon Garson; he accepted it without comment.

Asks About Him

"I can't understand," Garson said, without preliminaries, "why you ever thought of marrying a man you think so little of as Tracy. Was it all sentimental nonsense?"

His strategy did not seem presumptuous at the moment to Connie in view of Garson's announced purpose of trying to fathom her. It was on that basis, precisely, that he was here now.

"I don't know why I should talk about these things to you," she said quietly, except that I want to be agreeable. I can't tell you about Jim and me—it's as though it never existed. No, I wasn't under a spell. I just got so used to him that it seemed natural that we should marry."

"And then you woke up?"

"And then I woke up. Just in time. Does that help you to understand me better?"

"I think I understand you better—best—when I saw you put aside all my threatening talk down on Tenth avenue, and let your heart warm up for Kitty in spite of the way we were bullying you. That was real stuff. All the other—Jim Tracy—was more or less accidental."

"Tell me about yourself," Connie commanded suddenly.

"I'd rather not," he said slowly. "I'm not your kind. You want to be broadminded, but you wouldn't approve of me at all."

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Map

"If we but had his money, eh, Georges?"

Pierre Rivot, sitting with Georges Bourdin on the steps of the office of M. le Maire of Huile, indicated an aged man hobbling along the single street of the little French village.

"He has money in plenty, that I know—but wishing pu's no frances in a man's pocket."

Henri Gast, the mayor, overheard them.

"Old Jean has money—you are right, but what else would you expect of a man who has always worked hard?"

He looked severely at Pierre and Georges, for they were both lazy fellows of none too good repute, who seemed to seldom work.

"A man is a fool to kill himself with work," Pierre muttered, "besides, old Jean inherited money and the government bought from him all that worthless land for the soldiers' cemetery."

M. le Marie saw old Jean Le Duc turn in at the gate. The mayor's office was in his home.

"Ha! So you boys have become rich gentlemen with no need to work, eh?" he growled at them.

"What affair is it of yours?" Pierre answered, surlily.

"None. I have no affairs with lazy folks. On a day like this, when I was your age, I was working from dawn to dark. My boy, Antol, is even now working in America."

"Working? I understood he was going to a college," M. le Maire said.

"A college, to be sure, a college of farming, a school of agriculture, where he works early and late, one has to work to learn the modern farming." He turned to the two young men. "They are building the new bridge across the swamp and need men; you will earn more there than sitting here," he said to them.

"I have come to see you on some business, M. le Maire," Le Duc said, turning his back on the loafers in disgust.

Explains to Mayor

The voices of old Jean and the mayor were plainly heard through the open windows.

Georges nudged Pierre.

"What does it mean?" Mayor Gast asked.

"Antol will understand, M. le Maire. I would not trust the map in the mails. I have sent word to my boy, Antol, that should anything happen to me, he can get from you the map. I have explained to him what the map means."

M. le Maire promised old Jean Le Duc to take the best of care of the map.

"I shall put it in the folder with your tax papers, which I keep locked in that cabinet. It will be safe there, yet easy enough to find if occasion demands, but I shall pray that nothing happens to you and that you may have the pleasure of telling your son about this map in person."

"God willing, M. le Maire, but one never knows. I must go back to my farm; there is work to be done."

"What did you make of it?" Georges asked.

"Exactly. The old fellow puts no trust in banks or in investments in these crazy times. He buried his money, like as not a half million francs."

"Like as not."

"And," here Pierre spoke in a whisper, "if one could have that map long enough to copy it, one could go some dark night, do a bit of digging—viola! Riches!"

"Did you hear in the folder with the Le Duc tax papers?"

Discuss Plans

"It is a big lock, and modern, with a queer sort of key one could not well duplicate."

"But why bother with duplicating a key?" Pierre said, grinning, "when a small screw driver will serve better."

"Now is our time," Georges said to Pierre. "M. le Maire goes to Vesoul tomorrow to attend a meeting of all the mayors of the Department of Haute Saone. He will be gone over night. His old housekeeper is stone deaf, we can get the map easily."

That night, making certain that M. le Maire Gast had departed to Vesoul, Georges and Pierre forced their way into the mayor's house through a rear window.

The screw driver did the trick. The cabinet door was opened, the folder of Jean Le Duc found and the map taken out. With a stylus and carbon paper they made a tracing of the map, replaced it, replaced the hinges and got away.

It was too near dawn then, and the night too bright, to think of going to dig.

The next day Pierre called at the cottage of Madame Grossert. Her stepdaughter, Margot, did not seem pleased to see him and she struck his hand down when he pinched her rosy cheek and called her his sweet little cabbage. He had a private talk with Madame Grossert which seemed to please the old lady greatly.

"Such luck for you," the old dame said, "Monsieur Rivot will marry you!"

"Since when did the lazy, worthless Pierre Rivot become a monsieur? And as if I'd marry him. I am waiting for Antol Le Duc, as you well know," Margot cried.

"Pouf! Antol Le Duc! Over in America, he is, and never coming back. It is already rumored he has married for himself a rich American girl. Monsieur Rivot is within a few days to inherit a great fortune you shall be proud to marry him, and I command it, no words if you please."

Margot knew the old woman too well to argue. She went to her little room to cry about it.

It seemed to Georges and Pierre as though every night for the next thousand years was to be clear and moonlight, but finally the dark, foggy night came. It was ideal for their work. Already they had studied the lay of the land marked by the map.

Pierre had his iron bar, for silencing old Jean if he should surprise them. But he also had a long keen knife hidden in his coat. This knife he intended to use on Georges as soon as they dug up the riches. This would leave it all for Pierre.

How it would have surprised Pierre if he had known that Georges also had a knife. It had occurred to him that with Pierre out of the way, all of the buried Le Duc gold would be his.

Antol Le Duc graduated from the American Agricultural College, had come home to surprise his old father. When he was driven out to the homestead he was considerably surprised, himself, for there was a crowd there, M. le Maire, M. le Prefect of Police, and many others, including Margot and her stepmother.

Excitement at Farm

Old Jean embraced and kissed his son. Everyone tried to talk at once. Finally M. le Maire said that he would explain. Antol sat down beside Margot, to listen.

M. le Maire went into great detail, from the time Antol's father brought the map for him to keep.

"... and so it seems, my good Antol, that those two worthless ones, Georges and Pierre, believed that the map marked where your good father had buried his money. But it merely marked the spot where a nest of unexploded shells lay buried since the war. Your father left the map to warn you, lest you dig into it and be killed. I, who was left of them when their picks struck the great shells, but enough to make sure from fingerprints on the map, that in some way they broke into my cabinet and copied that map."

"Thank you, M. le Maire," said Antol, "and now, as soon as may be, we shall go to your office, Margot and I, for the marriage ceremony!"

We Should Encourage Railroads to Operate Own Barge Lines

The following editorial, the sixth of a series, is reprinted from The Sun-Telegraph, the New York Herald Tribune, the Baltimore Sun, the Philadelphia Evening Ledger and the Washington Star.

President Hoover once stated that the greatest waste in this country was our water resources.

No river, he said, should be allowed to run down to the sea without having performed the maximum service of irrigation, power supply and TRANSPORTATION.

River transportation in the United States lags because it lacks the co-operation of the railroads. Until that co-operation is secured, we shall continue to give scant return for the scores of millions we spend on improving inland waterways.

Big, economical river steamers and barges cannot be filled with port-to-port traffic, anymore than ocean steamers. The railroads must feed and distribute them. New York and Hamburg contribute little of the freight that moves between those ports. Each port is a traffic funnel through which railroad trains pour their contents into ship holds. So with river traffic in Germany. Railroads pour traffic into barges on Elbe and Rhine to be transported cheaply by water to Hamburg or Rotterdam for export. That, incidentally, is an important reason for the growth of Germany's export trade.

The Mississippi system renders no such service to us. It does not drain traffic from the Mississippi valley at cheap river rates to New Orleans for export. The reason is that our private owned railroads will not "short haul" themselves and give the "long haul" (and most of the revenue) to a competing water carrier. The courts have upheld the railroads in resisting this co-operation.

It might be wise to make it worth their while to co-operate. Why not allow and encourage the railroads to run barge lines of their own? Then it would be to their advantage to dump all suitable freight at the earliest moment into the cheaper water carrier.

Then it would be the business of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make sure that the public got the advantage of the cheaper transportation thus provided. By law, already, the commission has control of rail and water rates of rail-owned water lines. It would certainly not give us less than we now have. It might give us a great deal more.

The government-owned barge lines on the Mississippi are admittedly being run only until a suitable purchaser can be found. If they are to be sold, why not sell them to a group of railroads or to an individual rail carrier. President Markham of the Illinois Central a few years ago said this was the way to get out of the Mississippi system the service it could render. Why not give President Markham's idea a trial?

It is too bad the Interstate Commerce Commission did not cover the subject in its outline of an American transportation system—its suggested group of railroad consolidation.

Mockery of Patriotism

An oath to commit treason, if necessary, against the United States will be exacted by the League of Nations from citizens of the United States who may be employed by the League in the future.

Is that statement incredible? Yes, it is absolutely incredible.

Is it untrue? No, it is absolutely true. It is the flat, unqualified assertion of an employe of the League, who has the effrontery to call himself an American citizen, and who brazenly admits that he is willing to take the oath and live up to it.

Let that sink into your minds for a minute—you Americans—by birth and by choice—who read this, and when you have thoroughly digested it, read on.

"Officials who take the oath of allegiance to the League of Nations owe their first duty to the League rather than to their own country.

"That is the interpretation placed today on the League's oath by Dr. Benjamin Gerig, an American employed in the information section.

"The oath was prescribed at the last meeting. Since it is not retroactive, Gerig does not have to swear to it. He explained:

"'But if I took the oath, and I am perfectly willing to do so, I would consider that my first duty, in event of a showdown, was to the League and, secondly, to my country, the United States.'"

"Even a war would not alter conditions, he said. Obligations of the oath, numerous observers here point out, mark the League as setting itself up as a supergovernment."

Presumably Dr. Gerig is a competent witness. He asserts that he is an American citizen and that assertion has not been challenged. As an American citizen he obtained employment in the information section of the League, along with other competent persons who are citizens of other countries.

But there is a far more competent witness than Dr. Gerig that Americans can call to testify and that is the text of the oath itself.

"I solemnly undertake to exercise, in conformity with Article 1 of the regulations, in all loyalty, discretion and conscience, the functions which have been entrusted to me as an official of the secretariat of the League of Nations."

Article 1 mentioned in the oath says:

"The officials of the secretariat of the League of Nations are exclusively international officials and their duties are not national, but international. By accepting appointment, they pledge themselves to discharge their functions and to regulate their conduct with the interests of the League alone in view. They are subject to the authority of the secretary-general, and are responsible to him in the exercise of their functions, as provided in these regulations. They may not seek or receive instructions from any government or other authority external to the secretariat of the League of Nations."

And there you have it summed up for you, fellow citizens.

There is the writing on the wall. There you see the workings of this supergovernment stripped of its camouflage—a supergovernment that seeks to rule this nation and all other nations, that demands the peace-time and war-time allegiance of its servants against their own homeland and their own people, that makes a mockery of patriotism and a star-spangled joke of the nation's flag.

That is what the League of Nations means and that is the entangling alliance and supergovernment into which a new attempt is now being made to lure the United States through the back door of the League's Court.

The American people are asked to turn from the leadership of George Washington to the leadership of Benedict Arnold.

No concealment can disguise that fact, no apology can excuse it, and those who try to disguise or excuse it may profit from Benedict Arnold's example.

None Too Severe

Long Sentences Imposed on Perry State Bank Robbers Are Justified.

The sentences of from 30 to 60 years imposed on two of the youthful robbers who held up the Perry State Bank less than a month ago are justified.

The fact that they are mere boys, each being only 19 years old, naturally will arouse a little sympathy for them; but it is not to be overlooked that they were potential murderers who, if they had met resistance, might be going to the electric chair now.

Judge Moore's sentences emphasize that a robbery committed at the point of the pistol is a serious crime. The fact needed emphasis, for several of our magistrates have let off holdup men lately with light fines.

DRAMATIC DISCOVERY

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most dramatic of recent incidents, of truly world interest, was the discovery of the camp of Salomon August Andree and his two companions, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel.

Two expeditions went into Franz Josef Land, one Norwegian party led by Dr. Gunnar Horn, and the other, which followed a month later, led by Knut Stubbendorff who represented two Swedish newspapers and the Hearst newspapers. As narrated by Horn in the fascinating book, "Andree's Story," the discovery of Andree's camp was due to two sealers, lads named Olav Salen and Karl Tusvik.

They were out killing walrus and it was while they were reconnoitering about their camp, after killing two walruses, that they found various objects; first an aluminum lid, then a canvas boat half buried in the snow. In the boat were found a number of implements, including a brass boat hook.

The sealers reported their startling find to the camp, and when the boat was more fully examined it was found to be full of expedition equipment, many of the objects being marked "Andree's Pol. Exp. 1896." It was the most dramatic discovery of the century. The mystery of Andree's disappearance 33 years ago, which had stirred and piqued the curiosity of the entire world, was at last to be revealed.

For here were not only boat, camp equipment and skeletons, but scientific instruments, Andree's own diaries, as well as the journals of his companions.

There were even photographic films, so well preserved that they have since been developed and reproduced in books and newspapers everywhere. Today the world is reading with thrilled interest the virtually complete account of the expedition which has long been veiled in mystery.

The remains found on desolate White Island recalled vividly to the recollection of the older generation the epic expedition and mysterious disappearance of Andree and his two companions.

For years Andree had experimented with balloons, and finally reached the conclusion that a balloon, under proper guidance and the influence of known wind currents, might travel to many parts of the world. He presented his carefully worked-out views and conclusions to Swedish scientific bodies, to secure support for a polar flight.

The famous discoverer of the Northeast Passage, Baron Nordenskiold, voiced his faith in Andree's plans, and just before the start to the Pole, Nansen wrote a long letter to Andree, in which he said: "On your banner, I believe, are inscribed the golden words of Macbeth: 'I dare do all that becomes a man; who dares do more is none.' It is in drawing this distinction that the true test of character appears."

It was on July 11, 1897, that Andree, Strindberg and Fraenkel set off in the balloon Eagle from Dane Island, Spitzbergen. Four days later a carrier pigeon was shot by someone on a Norwegian sealer. Within a metal cylinder was discovered a message from Andree, carrying the cheering words: "All well on board."

And thereafter silence. That silence, of 33 years duration, has now been broken. Andree was a great figure in the history of polar exploration. He and his companions will always be remembered and honored for their gallantry, courage and greatness.

The Artist

The model wearies and the daylight wanes,
For soon the dusk will creep
Like curtains drawn across the window panes;
Vague shadows grow more deep;
But heedless of the hours, the artist stands
With eager brush he lays the colors on Until there breathes beneath his ardent hands
A new-moon maiden, lovely as the dawn.

All unapproached his vision still remains,
Despite the beauty there;
The faultlessness a dream alone attains
Leaves in its wake despair.
Always on earth the dream must be denied,
And so the artist sees
His dearest longings go unsatisfied,
Life's wine must have its lees.

And ever in his soul
Joy quickens, this high joy for him always—
The quest and not the goal!

Radio for Infants

San Francisco Puts Them to Sleep with It.

PEACEFUL SCENE IN THE SAN FRANCISCO BABY AID SOCIETY. EACH BABY WEARS A RADIO HEADPIECE.

Many are the uses of the mysterious radio, from saving ships at sea, or guiding airplanes, to putting babies to sleep in San Francisco.

This photograph, taken in the San Francisco Baby's Aid Society, shows charming little babies, each with a radio headpiece, and presumably with the lullaby turned on, inviting them to sleep.

As it happens, they all seem wide awake; perhaps because the photographer has just used his flashlight, or because they are girls and like to have their pictures taken, or boys, and like to have their pictures taken even more than girls like it.

Long ago one of the greatest children's doctors, head of the Rothschild Hospital for Children in Paris, said that children, especially if delicate, should be wakened gently in the morning and preferably by the sound of music.

Music wakes them gradually and there is no nervous shock as they come out of sleep.

Better advice for a really delicate child is not to wake it at all, but let it sleep as long as it will. Sleep is Nature's way of restoring the batteries of nerve force.

Stern nurses and modern mothers would say, "Don't coddle your babies, don't pick them up if they cry, don't sing them to sleep, let them learn to go to sleep of themselves."

As wonderful a baby as ever was, put into its crib with the lights out, would immediately stand straight up, hold on to the bars of the crib, apparently not uttering a sound, until sleep overcame it and it fell, sound asleep, often with its head doubled up under its little stomach.

It didn't hurt that particular baby because it was robust. But while it is a mistake to "spoil" children, it is not a mistake to show them the utmost affection.

Affection is stored in the heart and mind, and gives strength in years to come.

However, don't fasten a radio headpiece to your little baby's head without consulting your doctor. You might make a mistake "tuning in" and ruin the baby's eardrums.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Press puffery has fashioned much foolish fantasia about the magnetic attraction of the chorus girl for rich young bloods, ripening millionaires and other gilded matrimonial desirables. In some notable instances this is true, but they are exceptions.

The stage-door Johnny is usually a college boy on the make. He seeks a gay companion for a round of the night clubs. About the only catastrophe is his missing chapel. The Broadway play-boys who have married chorines have discarded them as quickly as law permitted.

The ambitionless chorus girl is prehensible and in the show business just for the ride. She is little interested in a desirable catch. With the accuracy of water she seeks her level. A Ziegfeld charmer keeping her tryst in a shady hotel with the notorious Legs Diamond is an example.

All the legendary stuff about the mad scramble for a chorus girl's favor is so much talk. The gangster, the sure thing boy and the race tout has his light lady from the ensemble, but the attachments seldom flower in the upper strata. The "boy friends" of the chorus maids are usually young toughs.

There are, of course, highly respectable chorus girls using their job as a stepping stone to loftier stage jobs. They are bright threads in the theatrical web, but are not seen in the sandwich parlors, speakeasies and night clubs. They go straight home from the theater and off hours are spent in improving studies.

As a rule the show girl is on a higher moral and intellectual plane than her sister of the merry merry. She is often paid $150 a week while the chorus girl's top is $65 a week. The show girl, contracting brilliant marriage, is frequently confused with the chorus girl.

Two theatrical producers have gone in for Napoleana. The late A. L. Erlanger had a Napoleonic library and was frequently called "The Little Emperor" because of his resemblance. Belasco has a Napoleon room, including an authenticated lock of the ruler's hair.

A new fad of rich matrons is engravings of husbands' portraits in moonstones for finger rings. The cost is several thousands and is considered very katish.

A New York writer challenges anyone to name a child prodigy amounting to anything after 21. With no more mental strain than required to write this we think of Fritz Kreisler. Also Lila Lee, Eddie Cantor and George Jessel. O, yes, and Heifetz!

Elsie Janis, too, as prodigy has not done so badly. Perhaps the most idolized wonder kiddie of this generation is Jackie Coogan, who now asks to be called Jack. It will be interesting to watch his career, if any.

The radio just then began suddenly to blurt that year or so ago tune, "Button Up Your Overcoat," and turned thoughts entirely from columnar channels. One of our boyhood pals was Earl Mauck, known to local spit-and-whittlers as "Squire." He never buttoned his overcoat. I see him yet, spitting up Second street with his coattails flying. Finally all of us got to doing it—a gesture of small town swank like wearing a finger ring around a four-in-hand tie. The same overcoat looseness is now featured by ebony swells of Harlem.
